Carter okays farm labor unions

RIDGE, Ill. - Allan Grant, of the American Farm Bureau on, says that Governor Carter's endorsement of a California farm egislative proposal of Cesar Unite Farm Workers union IO), indicates a writeoff of a growers, and many farmers in arts of the country, in his tial campaign.

California farm labor law on, which Carter said he does not is known as Proposition 14, an e measure which will appear on ember ballot in that state.

nor Carter made known his in a Los Angeles Times interview k.

a Visalia, California, livestock said that if adopted, Proposition 14 lock into law some of the principal by the United Farm Workers at farmers have fought for years. ddition, it would provide for access to farm properties by nonemployee union organizers. This raises the question of whether such an administrative regulation would violate Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments of the U.S. Constitution by depriving property owners of their rights without due process of law. The provision also violates California trespass laws which give any individual the right to bar trespassers from his property.

"Proposition 14 also provides for extension of coercive secondary boycotts and adoption of so-called elective procedures that have permitted UFW partisans to vote in California farm labor law elections without clear identification or established elective eligibility.

"The UFW initiative program implies total abandonment of federal procedures for secret ballots that farmers and workers have sought for a long time.

"Proposition 14 would prevent the state legislature from making any changes in the law or procedure no matter how badly they were working out, except through another referendum. For all practical purposes, the legislation would take away any jurisdiction of the state legislature in farm labor laws," Grant said.

In answer to a question by a Los Angeles Times reporter last week on national farm labor legislation, the California farm labor board and Proposition 14, Grant said the Democrat Presidential candidate replied:

"My own inclination would be to hold off on national farm labor legislation while I see how the California plan works. On Proposition 14, it follows the pattern of established legislation and I think basically I would have no objection to it."

"Governor Carter," Grant said, "is in total error in saying that Proposition 14 follows the pattern of established legislation. Its provisions obviously do not follow the pattern of the California Agricultural Relations Act which the California Farm Bureau Federation initially endorsed with the understanding that its implementation would follow the pattern of the National Labor Relations Act. Proposition 14 does not follow this pattern."

Grant said that this is the second time that Governor Carter has indicated support for Proposition 14.

"In April of this year, Governor Carter voiced support for the initiative referendum in a telephone speech to a Los Angeles convention of the Mexican-American Political Association. We issued a statement April 23 stating that Governor Carter apparently did not understand much about UFW's Proposition 14," Grant said.

"Governor Carter called me and explained that he had misunderstood the question and meant only to voice support for the California Agricultural Labor Relations Act."

Grant said that Governor Carter's reply in the interview this week "can only be viewed as an endorsement of Proposition 14, and he certainly can't claim that he misunderstood the question this time."

S agriculture can have bullish future

ETER KRIEG

Associated with the world's largest manufacturer of farm machinery for nearly 30 years, Kaine offered his remarks to editors from 40 major North American agricultural publications, including LANCASTER FARMING. The occasion was the unveiling of the new series "86" tractors and a variety of other equipment. While the showing here was exclusively for dealer, distributors, and members of the press, IH will take the wraps off their new machines next Saturday for all to see.

In his remarks, Kaine said he sees good supplies of farm equipment, in contrast to the shortages which were experienced two years ago. He described the North American market for farm implements and tractors to be "mature" and "very

This DEKALB Sex Sal record was compiled by Henry U. Stoltzfus of R. D. No. 2, Honeybrook, PA. It was impressive enough to encourage him to convert his 3000 capacity floor house to a triple-decked, 6800 bird, cage operation. Henry says, "I'm retailing more and more of my own eggs and the abundance of Grade A large and extra large eggs I get from the Sex Sal is what I need."

EDITORIAL COMMENTS

BY DIETER KRIEG, EDITOR

Carter offers what we don't need

Presidential hopeful Jimmy Carter has lately been proposing ideas which this country can do without. Among them are increased federal spending, increased welfare and related programs, and increases in union power.

The man from Georgia seems to be forgetting that bills still need to be paid, (even costs of federal programs) and that unions have had an awful lot to do with slowing this country's economy down in the first place.

The lead story on page 1 this week should give readers some indication of what could be in store for them if Carter is elected. While California is far removed geographically from this part of the country, it's not far in terms of having ideas spread forth from there which could affect most or even all of agriculture. The point is that some effort should be made to keep unions from getting even a tiny foothold on farms. That, in my opinion, would be the final stranglehold in bringing the free enterprise system to its knees. None of us can afford that.

Carter's stand on labor issues has been the subject of quite a few editorials this summer in newspapers and magazines across the country. One article which appeared in Harper's magazine was headlined "Jimmy Carter's Pathetic Lies" because the former Georgia governor has had a habit of changing directions more often than a weathervane.

Ironically, there's a book on the market which is entitled "I'll Never Lie to You" which contains a collection of quotes from the man some people believe to be impeccably honest and a shining example of brotherly love. However, now that the campaign is in full swing, quite a number of contradictions are being found in what Jimmy Carter says from one year to the next or one week to the next. His position on labor unions is just one example where the candidate switched loyalties. For example, in 1971 Carter said:

". . I was not in favor of doing away with the right to work law, and that is the position I still maintain."

Earlier this year Carter reversed his stand.

"I never cared about right to work one way or another . If you get it through (repealing legislation), I'll sign it" At another occasion, in April, he said "I think 14-B should be repealed, which would permit the abolition of right to work laws And if Congress passes such legislation, I'd be glad to sign it."

It has been reported that he put the emphasis on "glad" when he made the above statement.

The repeal of Section 14-B would open the doors for unions to take over, since an individual would no longer have the right to choose between being a member and not being a member. He'd be forced to join, like it or not. That, in my opinion, is in direct conflict with the principles of freedom which this country is supposed to be associated with. I can do without that sort of ridiculous legislation, and I can certainly do without Carter.

Naturally, Carter realizes that labor unions are powerful — they're in a position to deliver lots of votes as well as money. What Carter is in effect doing by taking the pro-big union position, is selling out American freedom in order to gain access to the White House.

President Ford, on the other hand, has flatly stated he will not support a move which would remove an individual's right to work. With that, Ford is in tune with the principles of freedom, as well as the wishes of the American people. A recent poll by the Opinion Research Corporation of Princeton, N.J. reveals that 75 per cent of Americans believe in the right to "hold a job whether or not he or she belongs to a union." In fact, half of the national union membership is even opposed to compulsory unionism.

Ironic too, is the way Carter is trying to build up campaign funds. He says he won't accept funds from political action committees which "are controlled by major oil companies." He sometimes talks as though he believes big business to be something to be ashamed of . . . yet he's in command of a multi-million dollar business himself. In an effort to disassociate himself with business, he goes around masquerading as a down-to-earth farmer. And he courts favors from the big unions — which have power and money to match any conglomerate.

Carter gives voters in November advice on how to vote:

"If I tell a lie, make a misleading statement, avoid a controversial issue, or betray your trust, don't support me"

GOOD ENOUGH?

Lesson for September 5, 1976

Background Scripture: Galatians 1:1 through 3:18.
Devotional Reading: Hebrews 11:1-12.

A patient confided that she was praying that God would heal her of her disease. "But, she added, "perhaps I'm not good enough."

Many people share her uncertainty. Their prayers for help are clouded by doubts about their own worthiness. They assume that God's response to their prayers will be determined by their moral standing in his eyes. If they have "done a lot for God," he will more likely, they believe, "do something for them." If God judges them to be "pretty good" they assume they will be more likely to receive his help than if they're are merely "alright."

Justified by what?

In the days of the early church, the Christians of Galatia greatly concerned the Apostle Paul because these ideas prevailed among them. Although they were professed followers of Jesus Christ, they still operated very much under the assumptions of Jewish legalism. Great emphasis was placed on adherence to rules and regulations as the means of assuring one's self of the love and goodness of God. Thus, in Galatia Christians attempted to win or earn God's favor by good deeds and rigid observance of religious laws.

Aware of this approach to Christianity at Galatia, Paul could hardly contain his explosive reactions: "O foolish Galatians!" he thunders, "Who has bewitched You . . .?" (Galatians 3:1). They are not only in error, according to Paul, but there is something dangerously wrong and evil about their approach.

Using two different approaches, Paul appeals to their understanding. First, he refers to the atonement of Christ: ". . . before whose eyes Jesus Christ was publicly portrayed as crucified?" (3:1). In other words, Christ's sacrificial death on the cross was not dependent upon men being "good enough" to deserve it. The atonement of Christ is not based upon the righteousness or good deeds of those of us who benefit by it.

Through faith!

Secondly, Paul asks: "Did you receive the Spirit by works of the law, or by hearing with faith?" (3:2). If the Galatians would only stop to consider that they themselves had witnessed that the bestowal of God's gifts is not dependent upon a person's good works or moral righteousness. In fact, if they were to go back through the Gospel accounts of Jesus' healing ministry, they would realize that Jesus never made his healing gift conditional upon a person's moral worth. No one was ever turned away from him because they weren't "good enough" or because he required them first to fulfill some requirement before he would restore their wholeness.

What Jesus did require of those who came for healing and salvation was the response of faith: putting themselves trustfully in his hands. Thus, "a man is not justified by works of the law but through faith in Jesus Christ" for no one is ever "good enough."

TO BE ALERT FOR JOHNSON GRASS

One of the most aggressive weed plants in our part of the country today is Johnson Grass, which resembles sorghum plants. This rank-growing weed is found in too many parts of the county and needs some special attention in order to expect any kind of a yield from normal crops. This is not the time of the year to do control practices but it is the time to locate the areas of infection and make plans for treatment next spring or next summer. One treatment is with Eradicane next April which needs to be disced into the ground before planting. The other treatment is with Roundup, a spray that is applied to the plants as they get into the boot stage just prior to shooting a seed-head. Growers with this problem should make plans for treatment next year with the possibility of not getting a crop from the land for one season.

TO CONTROL RODENTS

It will soon be time to store the 1976 corn crop, and rats and mice do very well on corn kernels. It might be time to start eliminating nesting places for them by cleaning up the premises and doing some concreting around foundations, walks, and barn walls. Rodents are very destructive and every good farmer should not put up with any of them. Rodenproofing cribs and other storage places will need attention during construction. Poison bait stations can be used in connection with a sanitation and a fix-up program. With colder weather to arrive in the next few months, many of these rodents will be heading for farm buildings.

TO CONSIDER COVER CROPS

Open ground during the winter months is not the way to conserve topsoil and extra moisture. We urge that farmers consider the seeding of a winter cover crop this fall on fields that do not go to winter grain and fields that are to grow row crops next

Livestock market and auction news

Omaha Cattle

Omaha
Sept. 2

Compared with the previous weeks close - closing prices on Slaughter Steers steady to 25 cents lower, Heifers closed fully steady. Cows 1.50-2.00 lower and bulls steady.

The fed cattle trade again followed a relatively stable course, although there were moderate day-to-day price variations largely in reflection of an uneven distribution of supplies over the trading period. Prices trended lower on a Monday run of 8400 Head, with the added bearishness of some concern over upcoming packinghouse labor contracts. Most of the early downturn was regained on later sessions, however, under a generally good demand by most buying interests. Early inventories were less than the previous week, and midweek trading was fairly aggressive despite the approaching non-slaughter weekend. The overall finish of the Steer and Heifer supply was again rather attractive with a liberal percentage Choice and a moderate volume Choice and Prime. Steers made up approximately 46 percent and Heifers 31 percent Cows comprised 12 percent and Feeders 7 percent.

season. Any of the winter grains will make a good cover crop in addition to bromegrass and domestic ryegrass. Many of these may be used for fall and winter grazing until the ground freezes. Cover crops not only conserve soil and water but will add organic matter to the soil when plowed or disced into the topsoil next spring. No-till corn growers may also utilize cover crops this fall and winter and then use a herbicide to kill them before planting. Cover crops are especially useful when no livestock or poultry manure is availalbe.

TO BE PREPARED FOR A KILLING FROST

We don't want to be thinking about frost in this part of the country for at least another month; however, growers of sudan grass or one of the sudan-sorghym hybrids should bear in mind that after a killing frost the plants may be toxic. When these plants are killed by frost they should not be fed in a fresh condition for at least 7 days after the frost, and until the plant is dead and dry. However, the plants may be made into hay or silage and allowed to cure or ferment for at least 30 days before using. Livestock producers are urged to be alert on these crops after a killing frost. Also, alfalfa and clover plants covered with frost are very dangerous to most animals and may cause severe bloating; allow the frost to melt and the plants to dry before grazing them.

good" and forecasted that growth would continue.

"Famers will be more productive," the executive announced, adding that International Harvester is totally committed to helping the farmer to accomplish their goals.

Kaine also foresees a lot more irrigation, larger fields, new acreages due to irrigation, and the opening up of marginal lands. The pace of these changes, coupled with the increased demands for food is expected to spur the need for bigger and better equipment.

For all of this growth to occur, it is essential that government policies be geared to agricultural exports, Kaine emphasized. "There is no doubt that this country has to use its distinct advantages of farm trade," the executive remarked.

During a question and answer session later in the program, IH representatives expressed no reservations for their bullish attitude, with the possible exception of some "tough" union demands. One individual hinted that some union proposals which the Ford Motor Company is currently confronted with could be difficult to live with.

Kaine strongly suggested that this nation's prosperity is linked to a distinctive and advantageous agricltural export program and that a favorable balance of trade depends on agriculture.

Circling back in his remarks to the farm machinery trade, Kaine described the overseas market as a growing one. He noted that there is a lot of growth potenital in Europe and that developing nations throughout the world are expanding agriculture. That, in turn, increases the demand for farm equipment. As IH puts it, this marks the dawning of "The Age of Agrarius" - an era of increased needs, increased production, and all-out dedication.

J. Patrick Kaine

Kaine and others cited impressive financial figures, both in terms of investment, as well as retail sales. During the first nine months of this year, for example, the company tallied worldwide sales of $1.659 billion.

Inventories of new equipment and parts for new and old equipment are in good shape, even in view of increased demands. Retail sales so far this year are reportedly 25 per cent higher than during the same period last year.

In addition to new equipment, "The Age of Agrarius" is also ushering in new approaches in service, Internal Harvester indicated. In line with this, the company is expanding its services, simplifying repair techniques, and in general embarking on a commitment which they claim is unexcelled by anyone else in the industry. Their new tractors, for example, can be split for servicing without ever having to remove the "cab" or "control center," as IH prefers it to be called. In addition, there is going to be a program dedicated to "total parts availability," with orders shipped out the same day from anywhere in the country.

Finally, prices of the new tractors are insignificantly higher than those of predecessor models. In some cases, the price per horsepower is actually lower.

Family takes top goat awards

KIMBERTON - The Chester-Delaware County 4-H Goat Show was held recently at the Fair Grounds here. Michael Weinstock, Phoenixville, won grand championship honors with his Toggenberg. His brother Jonathan won a junior champion ribbon with his doeling, and his sister Rachel was champion showman.

Lorin Andrien, West Chester, won both the fitting and the showmanship contest in the first-year division. In the junior division, Joshua Weinstock, Phoenixville, won the showmanship contest and Janet Goldhahn, a 4-H Club member from Delaware County, won the fitting contest.

Going, going, gone! These antique lanterns and similar sets brought in the neighborhood of $1000 at the annual Fall Antique and Carriage Auction, held a week ago at the Martin Auctions, east of Intercourse. The sale was so big in scope that it took four days to bring the collection before the gavel, and buyers drove thousands of miles just to be on hand for an event which has become a tradition for some. It is the largest sale of its kind in the country, as might have been evidenced by not just the number of items sold during the four days, but by the number of cars in the parking lot and the states they represented.

Carriages, carriages, and more carriages, including an old U.S. Mail stage coach, were pulled up seemingly everywhere around the Martin Auction, east of Intercourse, last week. The occasion was the Fall Antique and Carriage Auction, sponsored annually by Martin Auctioneers, Inc. Many of the carriages represented a collection formerly owned by John Groff, Lancaster Cadillac dealer. Believed to be the largest sale Martin ever had, the event was attended by thousands of people. They came from all over the United States, and paid thousands of dollars for items which were taken for granted just several generations ago.

Forage field day set

DOVER - Displays and actual working demonstrations of forage equipment will be featured at a forage field day sponsored by the Dover Young Farmers. Activities begin at 10 a.m. on Wednesday. The Clair Myers farm, near here, will host the event.

Participating dealers include: Gus Equipment Co., George N. Gross, Inc., Straley Farm Supply and Miller Sales and Service, Inc. Brand names represented are: Massey-Ferguson, Fox, New Holland, Gehl, Ford, and John Deere.

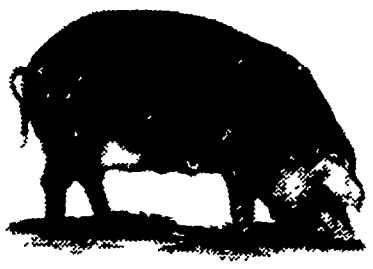
The equipment will be on display during the forenoon hours, but field demonstrations won't get started until 1 p.m. Lunch will be made available, with free drinks supplied by participating dealers.

In case of rain, the event will be held on Sept. 9.

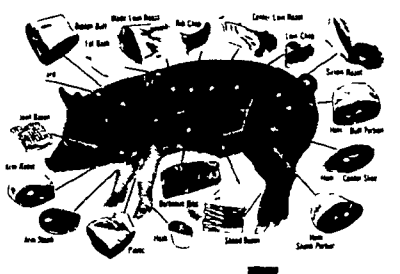
City visited

BALTIMORE, Md. - Adult farmers from the Conrad Weiser Chapter took their annual Summer tour recently, with this historic Maryland city and nearby attractions being the main destinations. The group visited Fort McHenry, took a boat cruise through the harbor, saw the U.S. frigate "Constellation," and strolled through the city itself.

Longevity - and the successful farmer



HOGS ARE MONEY MAKERS



Hog production has returned a profit more consistently over the years than any other enterprise in the field of animal agriculture. While the hog industry has experienced up and down cycles as a result of producer response to market situations, the production of slaughter hogs has been profitable on the average in 16 of the last 20 years. Pigs have long been recognized for their ability to efficiently convert grains into a marketable end-product of greater value. Pork production has been a major source of income on many U.S. farms.

Pork production remains a sound, money-making farm enterprise that has potential for future expansion. Some of the major advantages of hog production compared to other types of meat animal production are as follows:

1. No other meat offers as many merchandising alternatives as does pork. This merchandising flexibility is a key to marketing large pork supplies.

2. A market hog will yield a high percentage of its carcass weight in high priced cuts. These cuts are the ham and loin which make up as much as 48 percent of a meat-type hog carcass.

3. Hogs are prolific animals, which means that their numbers can be expanded rapidly.

4. Hogs are efficient converters of feed into edible meat and can be profitably produced where adequate grain supplies are availalbe.

Many pork producers still have not reached the full productive potential of their hog operation and thus limit their hog production capacity and profit capabilities.

Go with the established leaders, who have the knowlege, experience, programs and expertise. We would like the opportunity in assisting you, accomplish your hog production goals.

Kreider heads potato board

HARRISBURG — Noah Kreider, Jr., Manheim R5, has been elected chairman to the board of directors of a newly organized Pennsylvania Potato Research Board. Appointed by Secretary of Agriculture Raymond Kerstetter, the board is comprised of nine potato growers representing various sections of the Commonwealth.

The members are: Robert Barnett, Hegins; William Baumgartner, Kunkletown; Robert Brace, Waterford; Richard Croner, Berlin; Clyde E. Horner, Tionesta; Elvin Huntsinger, Hegins; Noah Kreider, Jr., Manheim; Earl Miller, Sugarloaf; and George Wolf, Stewartstown.

Other officers elected to the board include William Baumgartner, vice chairman, and Robert Barnett, secretary.

The board will administer the Potato Research Program which was voted into being in a referendum involving potato growers with 25 or more acres. The program provides for an assessment of one cent a hundredweight on all potatoes sold for human consumption. Proceeds, estimated to total over $40,000, will be used to finance research aimed at developing improved potato varieties for Pennsylvania soil and weather conditions.

Pennsylvania's potato crop in 1975 totaled nearly 7,000,000 hundredweight. About two thirds of this amount was used for processing, mostly potato chips.

Mushroom numbers up

WASHINGTON - U.S. mushroom production hit a record 310 million pounds during 1975-76, up four percent from the previous high set a year earlier, and 11 percent more than the 1973-74 crop.

Value of the crop, at $191.1 million, was up 30 percent from a year earlier - mainly because of higher prices. Growers received 61.7 cents per pound, compared to 49.2 cents a year earlier.

Pennsylvania remained the nation's leading producer, accounting for 179 million pounds or 58.6 percent of the total. New York moved from fourth to second nationally, with its production up from 5.3 million pounds in 1974-75 to 6.5 million pounds in 1975-76.

Corn field day slated

ATGLEN — Seventy-four different varieties of corn hybrids will be shown at the Corn Field Day near here next Thursday. Sponsored by the Chester County Cooperative Extension Service, with Penn State Extension agronomist Joseph McGahen as key speaker, the event will be held at the Nelson Stoltzfus farm, located about two miles south of here and one mile east of the Octorara High School.

Activities will begin at 1 p.m. with the following topics on the program:

Corn varieties.

Cover crop demonstrations — herbicide effectiveness and establishing a cover crop by means of blowing seeds into a standing corn field.

Johnsongrass control.

Corn production practices — weed and insect control, fertility, tillage, erosion, diseases, etc.

Corn plots will be left standing beyond the normal harvest time to permit interested observers to keep checking on standability. Six different rootworm insecticide treatments will also be shown.

In case of rain, programs will be moved to the barn.

Open house set

SCHWENKSVILLE - The Montgomery County Farmers Association will be holding open house on September 11 at 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. The open house will be in conjunction with Farm-City Week, a public relations effort of the Farmer's Association.

Participating farms are: the Warren Yother dairy farm, Lederach; Ott's Greenhouse, south of Schwenksville; Halteman's Egg Ranch, East Greenville; Jenson beef farm, Zeiglersville; McDonnell dairy farm, East Greenville; and the Elmer J. and E. Jay Renninger dairy farm, Royersford.

The public is invited. All routes to farms will be marked with arrows.

For more information, call Mrs. Robert Wolfgang. Phone 215-323-1496.

It takes 37 gallons of fuel and 185 kilowatts of electricity to produce the food and fiber on five acres of farmland.

GERMANIA DAIRY AUTOMATION

TAKE YOUR CHOICE . . . From a complete line of Automatic Take-offs

Only from Germania . . . The right take-off for every herd size, every milking parlor and every stanchion barn.

Today, GERMANIA's Model A and B "AirMatic" Takeoffs are top of the line in the dairy industry. On the market less than two years, more than 3,000 units are installed at over 120 dairies in 28 states.

The incredible success of the "AirMatic" comes from one simple idea — all-air operation and controls. Electrical and electronic equipment have been bothering cows and dairymen's pocketbooks for decades. The "AirMatic" is the first major piece of automation without any kind of electronics.

With remarkable results — the average annual cost of service per installation has been less than 1% of the purchase price. County agents in southern California estimate an industry average of 10%. Because the service cost has been so low, we have paid all the bills ourselves. That's right — GERMANIA has never sent a service or repair bill to any customer. And that's for installations up to two years old!

THE RIGHT IDEA AT THE RIGHT TIME

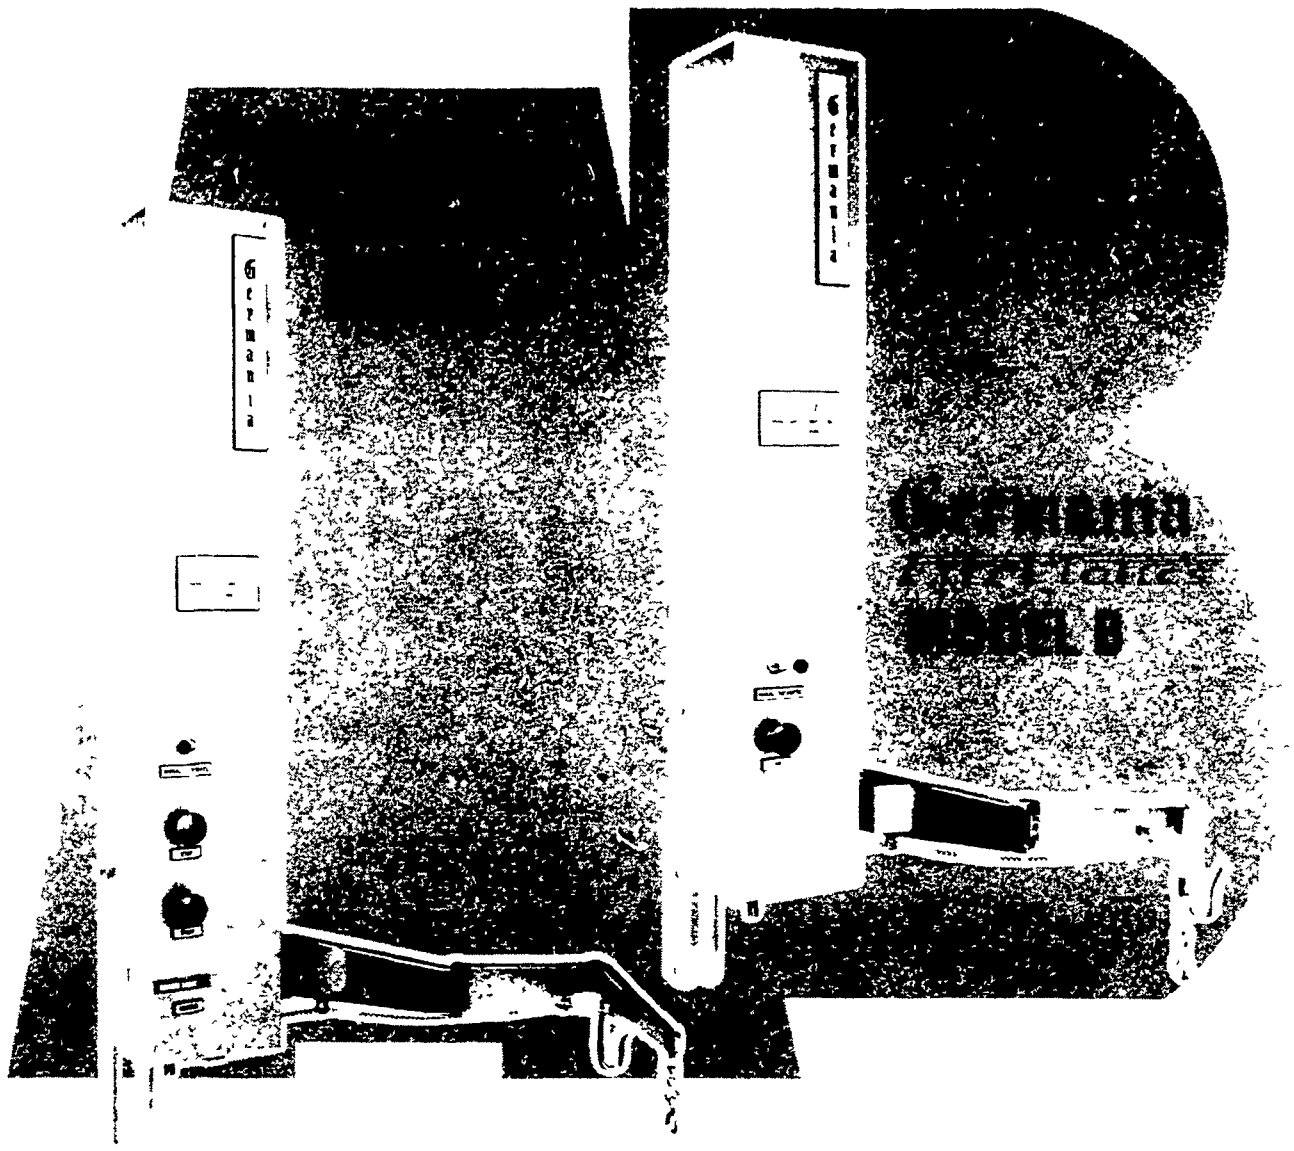
ALL-AIR CONTROLS combined with rugged, simple working parts and precise engineering, resulting in the finest piece of automated dairy equipment on the market today. Some AirMatic parts are made with tolerances of less than 1/1000 of an inch. From raw material to finished product, there are more than 130 individual quality checks.

There are no rubber parts to deteriorate, and no built-in parts replacement program. GERMANIA "AirMatics" wash in place, there is no hand brushing whatsoever. Most important — GERMANIA "AirMatics" are approved by the federal government, and all states where "AirMatics" are installed have approved them for in-place washing.

There is an optional automatic gate circuit to open and close entrance or exit gates, advance a crowd gate, start the feeding system, or do other chores which may need doing in between cow milkings.

Both Models A and B have a highly flexible support arm to follow the cows' movements. Yet the arm is so rugged, it cannot break no matter what cows do to it.

The all stainless steel flow sensor has wide open flow passages. It never plugs up because there is no orifice in the milk flow. It has a flow sensitivity of two ounces per minute, adjustable up to about one pound per minute. It cleans in place, on its own, without hand washing, perfectly! And — quite important — because of the wide open flow passages, the GERMANIA "AirMatic" flow sensor never causes vacuum fluctuations.



WHAT'S THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN MODELS A AND B?

Model A has a milking monitor. The monitor works on a timer. Should the milking machine come off within the first three minutes after start of milk flow, for whatever reason, a red flag warns the operator with "Recheck Udder." The monitor changes from green to red if there is no let-down, if the air bleed hole of the claw is plugged, or if the claw was kicked off during the first three minutes of milking.	Model B does not have this monitor.
All "AirMatics" shut the vacuum off before retracting the milker. However, Model A has an additional vacuum shut-off interlocking circuit. Vacuum shut-off and retract arm are interlocked. Should the vacuum shut-off mechanism malfunction, for whatever reason, the arm cannot retract the milker.	Model B has a positive vacuum shut-off, but not interlocked.
Also, the main valve of Model A is located remotely inside the machine and operated from a heavy-duty push button outside the machine.	The main valve of Model B is controlled directly from outside the machine.
Model A is the right take-off for double-10, double-12 and longer herringbones, and for double-4 or longer side-openers. In these long barns, the operator is too far away from his cows most of the time to keep track of problems such as fall-off or no let-down. He needs the monitor of Model A to assist him to do a good job of milking.	Model B is the best machine for double-8 herringbones, double-3 side-opening barns or shorter.

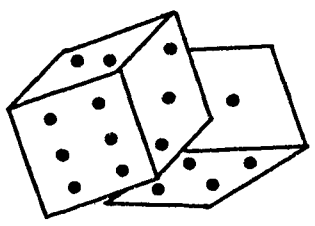
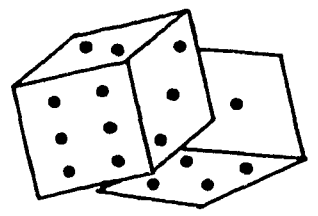
MAKING GOOD SILAGE

MUST IT BE A GAMBLE?





NEWS RELEASE . . .

August 25, 1976

Disappointment and dollar losses go hand in hand with a "bad batch" of silage. When this happens the livestock owner is bound to probe for answers. Why didn't it turn out well? What went wrong?

According to Dr. Marshall E. McCullough, chairman of the Animal Science Department at the University of Georgia and recognized as one of the foremost authorities on silage in the U.S., the diagnosis would probably relate to failure to get a good fermentation of the silage.

"The first 96 hours in the ensiling process are the most crucial of all", says Dr. McCullough. "The critical point within a given silo is speed of the fermentation."

"The usefulness of . . . additives is determined by their ability to reduce energy loss in the silo."

Prof. McCullough reports these results using the active ingredient in Master Mix ENSIL-ATE:

	SILO 1 Control	SILO 2 Treated	% INCREASE

State home economist is busy with dairy promotion

By SUSAN KAUFFMAN
Feature Writer

Take a dairy farmer's daughter who has experienced the work and accomplishments involved in farming. Add a college education in home economics. Blend in the enthusiasm of a young woman who believes in the products she promotes and the support of a family who takes interest in its members' work, and you have the ingredients for a hard-working, energetic home economist working under the Pennsylvania Bureau of Markets - Joyce Groff.

Joyce, the daughter of Robert C. and Mildred Groff, Quarryville R3, Lancaster County, calls on all of her background of experience, formal training, and present supply of energy and inspiration to fill her many roles in the Pennsylvania Bureau of Markets. She currently serves not one but four roles. Joyce is a home economist or marketing specialist in the dairy products field. More specifically, she is the supervisor for dairy promotion - a year round job which involves writing and arranging details for promotional programs on behalf of the Pennsylvania dairy industry.

Since April 28, she has added a new dimension to her tasks - one that is totally new to the state. She serves as coordinator of the Pennsylvania dairy princess program. During the summer months of June, July, and August, Joyce has been responsible for scheduling appearances, making travel and lodging arrangements, taking care of speech approvals, and chaperoning the state dairy princess, Charlene Maust. She has done this for 70 or 80 appearances.

A final aspect of Joyce's job profile is her involvement on the Keystone Milk Marketing Council. This council, which is not affiliated with Dairy Council, American Dairy Association or DRINC, a national dairy promotional organization, works to unify the promotion of the state's dairy products on a local level in shopping malls and grocery stores. The council accomplishes this through the appearance of the state dairy princess in both.

During this summer, the state princess has been an employee of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture with the job of promoting dairy products. This is the first year that a coordinator has been assigned to set up her schedule on an intensive basis. Since Joyce Groff has been traveling with Charlene, the state princess, she has been easily mistaken by her youth and vitality for the dairy princess herself. She and Charlene have had a hectic summer promoting milk in stores and shopping malls, before senior citizens groups, and attending numerous dairy princess contests on the local level. They've also debuted at fairs and farm related events and programs.

When asked what benefit the dairy industry receives from the dairy princess's occasionally appearing at primarily farm related programs rather than consumer related promotions, Miss Groff explained that similar to Progress Days, recently, 20,000 farm people got to see a princess at work and could be reassured that she was promoting their products in a unique way which they could not. As a rule, Charlene and Joyce have something to offer the children and the mothers.

"The children like the samples of milk and stickers or buttons, and the mothers always are willing to take new recipes home with them." said Joyce.

"Little children are tremendously impressed with a princess's presence," she continued. "They peek around the aisles and shopping carts several times to get another glimpse of this lady wearing a crown and banner right there in their mother's grocery store." In this way, Charlene becomes a model for them and they will use the products she promotes.

When the dairy princess and her coordinator arrange a program for senior citizens, they usually present a 45 minute ensemble in which their audience briefly recalls farm experiences from their youth. Then, Charlene shows a film entitled, "The Day Milk Was Turned Off." Joyce next dons a cow costume which Charlene developed as part of her dairy princess talent contest. Finally, both girls pass out advertising materials such as stickers or pins.

Joyce Groff and her mother, Mrs. Robert C. Groff, look over some of the promotional material for dairy products that Joyce and Charlene Maust hand out to passers by.

This year the 20th state dairy princess will be selected September 22 at the Penn Harris Motor Inn, Camphill. Forty-six counties will be represented by the 40 area contestants. The former state dairy princesses have been invited to attend.

"Getting present addresses of these past winners was quite an undertaking," Joyce explained.

When fall arrives, Joyce Groff will find herself behind a desk much more than this summer. At this time she will turn her attention to other aspects of her vocation.

Joyce graduated from Lampeter-Strasburg High School in 1971 in an academic program, because she was looking forward to education in college. While in high school, she showed much interest in the home economics activities and received the Outstanding Senior Home Economics Award upon graduation.

Joyce earned a Bachelor of Science degree in home economics education from Messiah College. Through continued contact from the Messiah College Placement Office, she started working for the Bureau of Rural Affairs, then was transferred to the Bureau of Markets where she took on her present diversified roles.

Joyce grew up on a dairy farm with her three sisters and one brother and performed the normal chores ever-present on a dairy farm. She helped with the milking at night and fed the calves in the morning during the school year. Ten years of 4-H Dairy Club training added knowledge and skill in raising and handling dairy animals as well as in appearing in public at shows. She was a master showman at the Solanco Fair and also exhibited a junior champion county 4-H animal during her 4-H involvement.

Besides doing the milking chores and spending time with 4-H activities in dairy, sewing, and cooking clubs, Joyce took music lessons on the piano and accordian. She and her sister Sharon are a favorite accordian duet in demand at the Mechanic Grove Church of the Brethern where the family are members.

"We studied the accordian because Dad had played one in a band in Lancaster when he was younger," Joyce commented.

This busy career girl spends most of her time at Harrisburg but returns home on weekends. Her parents farm 175 acres in Strasburg, Eden, and New Providence Townships in southern Lancaster County. They milk 60 registered Holsteins, and her father is a seed corn salesman.

When asked if she is free from farm chores now that she is working away, Joyce characteristically said, "I pinch hit at milking if we are short of help."

The first day of her job she unloaded hay in the morning then went to work. Now she comes home from her office to help out. Joyce, as is all of the Groff family, is willing to do whatever needs to be done whether at home or at church or civic activities.

Presently, Joyce serves as a member of the Task Force of the Solanco Homemakers Service, which set up guidelines and identify elderly people in the area who need assistance from volunteers to do small repair and upkeep jobs in their homes.

Miss Groff has maintained a membership in the American Home Economics Association and the Pennsylvania Association.

"I like to keep up with what is going on in the field." she stated.

When not traveling with the state dairy princess, writing promotional programs,

HOMESTEAD NOTES

Joyce and her sister are a popular duet group at church. Joyce's part in the duet is playing the accordian.

Joyce looks over her father's heifers in the meadow. She has contact with dairy animals even though she is busy in the office or on the road promoting dairy products.

State home

calling stores and malls, or helping at home, Joyce likes to sew and read. She hopes to crochet an afghan this winter but that prospect may turn out like her intentions of riding her new bike this summer.

"I bought a new ten-speed bike this year with the idea of riding it alot this summer, but my work with the dairy princess program fixed that," she quipped.

Joyce Groff's grass roots farm and 4-H activities, her formal education, and her personal enthusiasm and energy prepare her for her many roles, and the Pennsylvania dairy industry benefits from all her skills and vitality.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Last week our family spent a day at Pa. Ag Progress Days near State College. We saw many pieces of new farm machinery and some antique machinery which was driven by horse power. We even saw a wood-burning furnace for sale.

It was a hot day and we were glad for an opportunity to sit in a large tent and hear a fife played as it was used for marching during the Civil War. Another program which followed wool from shearing the sheep through spinning, dyeing, and weaving was very interesting. One especially engrossing part was the talk on the different flowers and barks which could be used to color the wool.

Late in the afternoon Philip drove the car home for us, and we had time to reflect on how rapidly the summer has gone this year. Next week we will go to State College again since Judy will be a junior there this fall. Her brother, Jeffrey, is getting his masters degree in biochemistry at Penn State also.

xxx

Times certainly change what children wear to school. They ask us to buy jeans and more jeans. The older girls sew pants instead of skirts. When I bought my first wool pants many years ago, to go ice skating, they were a novelty. Over the years, I've stuck to dresses until recently when I decided pants are a lot warmer in the winter months.

With everyone back in school, I know who will be picking all the beans and digging the red potatoes in the garden. Speaking of digging potatoes, I was surprised when I took up the plants for the second time to find several large potatoes. You see, I replanted them after digging them the end of June.

Society 26

The Society of Farm Women 26 met at the home of Janet Buchen with Mrs. Ruby Esbenshade as co-hostess Aug. 26. Mrs. Catherine Garber led the devotional meditation.

The secretary's and treasurer's reports were read. Also, the Sunshine Committee reported, giving a record to Polly Kreider and sending flowers to Lorraine Cassel during their stays in the hospital.

A motion was accepted that the group send $20 to Teen Challenge to buy toilet items, sheets and pillowcases. It was also decided to give Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Weidman $100 toward medical expenses.

The Society will be entertained by Society 8 Sept. 25, at 2 p.m. at the Chiques United Methodist Church.

The Society will again be having a food stand at the Manheim Farm Show this year from Oct. 6-8. The chair lady, Dora Brubaker, gave a report on the progress and needs in preparing for the Farm Show.

The County Convention will be held Nov. 6.

Christine Erb gave a report to the group on her trip as a 4-H student to Russia, Holland, Belgium, Germany, England, Switzerland, Denmark and Sweden.

The next meeting will be at the home of Nancy Buckwalter on Sept. 23. Ruth Thome will be present to show the ladies how to make corn husk dolls.

September is Better Breakfast Month. In accordance with this fact, Lancaster Farming will be featuring breakfast recipes during the third week of the month. To meet the publishing date, a September 17 deadline has been set for all recipes in this category. If you have any especially good recipes for this early morning meal, send them in.

This week, the featured garden produce is the tomato. There are also three squash recipes to clear the files on this vegetable. Hopefully, you could put some of the past recipes to good use this summer.

Scalloped Tomato and Potato Casserole

1 clove garlic
3 medium potatoes (1 lb.)
3 medium-ripe tomatoes (1½ lb.)
Boiling water
3 red onions (1 lb.)
¼ teaspoon dried tarragon leaves
¼ teaspoon dried basil leaves
1-½ tablespoons chopped parsley
3 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
½ cup grated Cheddar cheese

Preheat oven to 400 degrees F. Rub inside of 12 x 8 inch casserole with cut clove of garlic. Pare potatoes; slice ¼ inch thick. Scald tomatoes in boiling water; peel. Slice tomatoes ½ inch thick. (Don't scald tomatoes fresh from the garden, just slice ½ inch thick). Slice onions as thin as possible. In small bowl, combine tarragon, basil, and parsley; mix well. In prepared casserole, place a layer of potato, then onion, then tomato; repeat layering, ending with tomato. Sprinkle each layer of potato with herbs, salt, and nutmeg. Sprinkle each layer of tomato with salt. Dot top with butter. Bake covered, 45 minutes or until potatoes are fork-tender. Sprinkle top with cheese. Bake, uncovered, for five minutes. Makes six servings.

Note: This is even better made the day before and reheated.

My Thoughts and Welcome to Them

(With apologies to James Thurber)

They're out to get me

By JOANNE SPAHR

They have the advantage — they're invisible So, they can lie in wait, anxiously anticipating the moment they can — ZAP — get you on the arm, or — BUZZ — catch you on your leg, or, worst of all — ZING — nip you on the soles of your feet while you're innocently enjoying a walk on a peaceful summer's day. "They" are electric fences, and I'm petrified of them

Unlike some foolhardy cow who will "put her neck on the line," so to speak, to grab a blade of grass that looks greener on the other side of the electric fence, I step as lightly, and move as cautiously, as if a 20 ton megaton bomb were in the vicinity when I know there's an electric fence to be contended with.

I guess the phobia all goes back to the time when I realized that, like Santa Claus and the Boogey Man, there was no such thing as "good luck."

I was seven years old at the time, and after my first year at grade school, was just about fed up with third graders running up to me with what they said were four leaf clovers, but were really two three-leafers stuck together. I fell for the trick one too many times, so I decided it was time for me to show them that I really could find a lucky charm myself. Of course, inwardly, I never expected this to happen, but, nevertheless, I set out for the clover field.

After three hours of constant search, I still hadn't found one of the little devils, and so I headed in. Looking dejectedly at my feet, I glanced around at the field for a second and — Wow — there one was!! I got so excited that I ran toward the house to show Mom my good luck piece when — ZAP — I ran smack into an electric fence and stayed hanging there until my brother ran and pulled out the plug on the charger I never could get the knack of letting go when the current let off for a second Anyway, my brother thought it was hilarious, and I was hysterical Oh, yes, I dropped my cloverleaf in all the excitement and never bothered to pick it up I never went back for it, either

That little incident put the basic fear in me, and it kept compounding as I would go out for walks, gathering snap dragons and violets, and suddenly would have a live wire bite me in the foot Even when disconnected to let the cows out, our fences never failed

Then, of course, my brother also played dirty tricks on me if we were together and we had to go over a fence. He would stop, touch it, and say, "Don't worry, it's not on." Then, like a dope, I'd grab it as I stepped over it and would stay sticking until he unplugged the current

It has gotten so bad that, now, when I walk in a field, I wave my arms ahead of me like antennas and peer into the unknown around me, trying to prevent an unexpected zapp. I can just imagine motorists on the upper road, looking down at me as I make my way out the back fields, bending over as I search in front of me and waving my arms as I go. They probably think there's something wrong with me.

"Poor child," they must say. "We never realize how lucky we are, until we see someone less fortunate than ourselves"

How true. That's what I say, now, every time I see a cow reaching for some dinner over those nasty little wires.

New Senior 2 Year Old Pennsylvania State Record

Claradale Image Penny

Claradale Image Penny has broken the Senior 2 Year Old Pennsylvania State Record in Milk Production. This record of 24,260 lbs. of milk has not been challenged since 1967 and was broken by Claradale Image Penny by 990 lbs. of milk.

Her Breeding: Paternally she is the daughter of a homebred bull, Claradale Reflection Image, sired by Romandale Reflection Marquis. Her sire's dam is an EX 90 2E daughter of Rosafe Citation R. whose lactations averaged over 20,000 lbs. milk. Her highest record coming at 8 years: 309 days 24,360 lbs. milk and 837 fat. Maternally, she is a granddaughter of Paclamar Ivanhoe Black Eagle, a great granddaughter of Romandale Reflection Marquis.

Claradale Image Penny Classified Very Good 86. She captured the title after completing her first record of:

2 yrs. 0 mo. 300 days 2 x 20,995 lbs. milk and 558 fat.

She freshened the second time in less than one year as a senior 2 yr. old.

2 yrs. 11 mo. 305 days 2 x 25,250 lbs. milk and 746 fat.

We started on the Agri-King Feeding Program in 1972. We never really got completely on the Agri-King Program until the fall of 1974. In the Fall of 1974 we began testing on a regular basis and we now send a forage sample to the Agri-King Lab every two or three weeks.

We now have our Dry Cows on a Dry Cow Feeding Program and have our Milk Cows separated into a High Producing Group and a Low Producing Group, with a separate ration for each group.

In 1974 before we got completely on the Agri-King Program our Rolling Herd Average was 13,900 lbs. milk and now it is 16,000 lbs. milk and 600 lbs. Fat. This is a pretty nice increase for doing things right and testing so we could feed our cows a completely balanced ration.

4-H exchange delegate talks about Holland

Robin Burton, International 4-H Youth Delegate to the Netherlands, relaxes with a furry member of her host family in Holland.

..Editor's Note: The following feature is a courtesy of the University of Delaware, College of Agricultural Sciences.

REHOBETH BEACH, Del. - Robin Burton, recent University of Delaware graduate from the College of Agricultural Sciences, is on a four-month visit to Holland as part of an international 4-H exchange program. Robin and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James R. Burton, hail from Rehoboth Beach, Del. A recent letter from Robin brought American observations of the Dutch agricultural scene as well as humorous strugglings with money exchanges and metric conversions.

Burpless cucumbers, relatively recent innovations in America, have been on the European scene for over 30 years, reports Robin. She visited Sjef Verouden's farm, which produces this cucumber and saw for herself some interesting methods of growing them in greenhouses. Sjef has modernized the technique so that he can single-handedly oversee an acre of greenhouses year-round. Overhead sprinklers, temperature, and ventilation are automatically controlled.

Sjef harvests two crops of lettuce from November to April, and then, late in April, plants cucumbers. Each plant is pruned so that only one vine remains to climb up nylon ropes which are suspended from the ceiling. This one vine will produce an average of 45 cucumbers, each over a foot in length, says Robin. An adjoining packing house features a conveyor belt that sorts the cucumbers into six weight grades. Unlike American consumers, Europeans prefer the largest cucumbers.

Once every three years, says Robin, Sjef steams the soil for 20 hours to eliminate insects and disease. Another method of control which he uses is to graft a wild species of cucumber into the hybrid plant. This results in a stronger, more resistant plant.

It is said that Holland feeds Western Europe, and Sjef typifies many Dutch farmers who raise a lot of produce on a few acres of land. The last she sees of the cucumbers are as they are packed in brightly-colored boxes, all stamped with a picture of the little Dutch Maid and sent to Norway, Sweden, Great Britain, and West Germany.

Agricultural methods may be familiar to Robin, but the metric system sure isn't, she reports. After two weeks of feasting on cream soups, cheese, potatoes, and pastry, she was relieved to note she had gained only three kilograms. However, the metric conversion burst her balloon when she realized that meant over six-and-a-half pounds! Worse than that, though, says Robin, is to discover that you have a size 38 foot, when you left America with a size seven! She warns Americans to learn the metric system which should be in effect here in a few years. After all, she says, a gram of prevention is worth a kilogram of cure.

At the airport, upon her arrival in Holland, she was delighted to find that her $200 turned into 500 guilders. However, she soon discovered that a guilder didn't go as far as she had expected. A dress can cost 90 guilders and a haircut can claim 20, she writes.

The Dutch cooking, however, is not at all hard to get used to, says Robin. Cream of asparagus soup, sherry custard torte, chicken in wine and butter sauce....The Dutch love to cook! Breakfast and dinner are usually light meals of bread, cheese, meat, and fruit. The big meal of the day is at noon. The first course is a rich soup, such as pea, cream of tomato or oxtail. When that's finished, the "serious eating" begins. Bowls of vegetables and potatoes arrive with platters of meat and loaves of fresh bread. Many Dutch prefer to have their dessert later in the evening with coffee. In general, Dutch foods are easy to digest, being neither greasy nor too highly seasoned. Dutch cooks use just enough spice and wine to enhance the flavor of the meat or vegetable.

Robin closed her letter with a recipe for Dutch pea soup, which should warm her this winter back in Delaware with fond memories of Holland, guilders, burpless cucumbers, and metric conversions. That is, if she's not on a diet!

USE DISTILLED OR DEMINERALIZED WATER IN STEAM IRON

Most steam irons will work better for a longer time if distilled or demineralized water is used. Water gathered from dehumidifiers, rainwater, and defrost water from refrigerator defrosting are not as pure as distilled water. If you choose to use water from one of these sources, run it through a demineralizing filter before pouring it into your iron. You can find demineralizing filters in grocery, hardware, or appliance service stores.

Many manufacturers of irons say you can use tap water. But tap water may leave a film which can clog the spray nozzle and steam vents. Unless your iron is the "self cleaning" type, do not use tap water.

Avoid using water softened in a mechanical softener, too. In the softening process, minerals may have been added to the water which could damage your iron.

"HEALTH LIFE" AND "SHELF LIFE" OF CANNED FOODS

We all know that fresh and frozen foods should be used within a certain period of time. But many people are not sure about commercially canned foods. Can they spoil? How long will food keep in an unopened container?

The inside of a can is sterile, and so are its contents. So as long as the can's seal is airtight, its contents can't spoil. Its "health life" is forever.

But its "shelf life" is something else. While the contents may be perfectly safe to eat, they may start slowly losing nutrients or flavor after a while. This is a very slow, gradual process, and it doesn't mean you should throw a can of food out just because it's been hidden behind the mustard for a year.

I would like to recommend that you use canned foods within one year after purchase. So, think twice before buying a lifetime supply of something that's on sale.

I also want to suggest several steps you can take to prolong the "shelf life" of your canned foods. The most important factors are heat, moisture, and light - or absence of them.

Heat is the primary factor that affects quality. To keep canned foods at their peak of flavor and nutrition, it's best to store them where it's cool, below 70 degrees F. if possible. Of course, if a summer heat wave pushes the temperature into the 90's for a few weeks, ther's no cause for concern.

If a can is stored for a long period where it's very damp, the can will tend to rust. I recommend that you dispose of any cans with excessive evidence of rust, just to be safe.

If the food is in a glass container, it's best to store it in a dark place. That's because prolonged light can affect the color, making it less appetizing, although still safe to eat.

Theoretically, canned foods will last forever. But it makes more sense to enjoy them at their best.

McGovern co-sponsors rural energy bill

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Senator George McGovern recently announced that he is joining as a cosponsor of a bill that would create a Rural Energy Office within the Department of Agriculture. As envisioned by the legislation, the office would be charged with the responsibility of maintaining a continuous audit of the fuel and energy needs of rural areas.

"We all remember the problems we had in South Dakota as a result of the energy shortage situation in the summber of 1974. The fact that fuel supplies were short was bad enough, but even more frustrating was trying to deal with the Federal Energy Administration (FEA)," McGovern said.

The Senator said that the energy needs of rural areas are not like those of the rest of the country. Because of the greater distances which rural Americans have to travel to their employment and to obtain basic social services, they consume a higher per capita amount of gasoline than the national average. Also, because the predominant housing pattern in rural areas consists of single-family dwellings, rural citizens consume more heating fuel as well. This is compounded by the existence of sixty percent of the nation's substandard housing in rural areas. Rural people also have higher per capita consumption rates of liquified petroleum gases (LPG) because of the use made of LPGs in crop drying for agricultural pruposes.

However, they consume far less residual fuel - heavyweight industrial oil - than the national average because their major sources of fuel for electricity are hydropower and coal, the Senator said.

"I think we can see that the FEA has not given South Dakota and other rural areas the consideration they deserve," Senator McGovern said. "The expertise and the people needed to do the job required in this legislation are already in the USDA. All we need to do is give some direction and leadership to assure that they give more than piecemeal attention to the problem."

McGovern said the mission of the new agency would be to assist already existing energy-related agencies such as the FEA, the Federal Power Commission, and the Federal Highway Administration in alleviating rural energy shortages and planning for long range conservation programs.

First year poultry judge breaks 30-year record

By JOANNE SPAHR

PEACH BOTTOM - I'd dare any chicken to give Joyce Aument, Peach Bottom R2, the evil eye. If one did, Joyce would probably stare right back at it, looking to see if its pupils were on center, its comb standing upright, and if it had discoloration, and then she'd tell the little smart aleck what she thought of it - whether it was a top or low grade chicken. And, if it was not a top grade bird, she'd tell it to get out of her flock.

Not that Joyce is mean, she's just nothing to fool around with when it comes to poultry judging.

Several weeks ago, at 4-H Achievement Days held at Penn State, 15-year-old Joyce, a first year member of the poultry team, broke a 30-year record by scoring 1091 points out of 1200 in the poultry judging contest. She shared this honor with another judge, Tom Trone, who tied her score.

What is her secret of success?

"Just a lot of luck," she giggles, flashing a quick look to make sure that it is understood she is only kidding.

"It takes a good leader and teacher," she explains slowly and quietly. "And," she adds modestly, "a lot of it is common sense."

The secret is probably a combination of all the factors Joyce mentioned and one more - a keen eye on Joyce's part.

Actually, it took only four weeks during the month of July to transform a novice into an expert. The four members of the Lancaster Co. judging team, Mary DeLong, Anita Augsburger, Pam Wivell and Joyce met with their leader, John Gingrich of Pennfield Feeds during that time to learn "the tricks of the trade." And, before she knew it, Joyce had learned it all so well that it now comes as second nature to her.Then, at Penn State, she and all the other members of the team were put to the test. In one 50 minute period, each person made 1000 decisions, judging 45 eggs on 10 characteristics each, and 34 chickens on 20 characteristics each. In addition, each took a written examination and gave oral reasons under examination for their decisions.

Although it sounds incomprehensible, when Joyce tells about it, it doesn't seem so bad. According to her, where were eight divisions to the poultry and egg judging tests.

One part was written - this was a true and false test which Joyce had to fill out.

Another part was oral. This is the area known as "reasons." Joyce had to look at four hens and place them from first to fourth and then explain her reasoning for putting one over the other. To help in making her decision, Joyce was allowed to touch the birds.

However, in another area of the judging contest, the birds were kept in a cage, and she was not able to touch them before she placed in rank of first to fourth. In this area, she chose to place four pullets.

Live poultry was not the only kind of poultry evaluated.

Joyce also had to grade dressed chickens, as well. She also had to know quite a bit about eggs. In egg judging, there were three categories. Joyce first candled them, grading each as AA, A, B, or C. Then, she had to do the same for broken out eggs, and finally, she had to grade the shells of the eggs.

Combining her scores for all these areas, she came up with that 30-year record breaker.

And, for all her effort, ability, and achievement of breaking that record, she received - nothing.

"As far as I know," says Joyce, "the high person of all the other teams got trophies, but poultry didn't." Lancaster County, however, did recognize her effort recently by giving her a gift at awards night.

And, while she received no trophy, Joyce was honored another way at Penn State.

"The winning team, Adams County, asked her to go with them to NEPPCO," discloses her mother, Mrs. Clyde (June) Aument. "But, she turned them down."

The reason for Joyce turning them down was that the NEPPCO competition is a national competition held in Massachusetts, and if she went, she couldn't go back to Penn State next year.

"I want to help out on the team again, because if we win next year we get to keep the trophy," explains Joyce.

This year, Lancaster lost to Adams County by only one-tenth of one per cent, so the pressure will be on next year. That means, ideally, that it would be nice if Joyce could keep boning up on her poultry judging all year round.

But, that won't be quite as easy for her as it will be for some people. Instead of coming from a huge poultry farm like some 4-H'ers, there are only 50 capons on the whole Aument farm - 25 are hers and 25 are her youngest brother, Paul's. Both Aument belong to the Solanco 4-H Community Club and raise capons as projects.

Joyce Aument holds one of her 25 capons. Although the Aument family is not a big producer of poultry, Joyce nevertheless had the expertise to break a 30-year 4-H poultry judging record recently.

Neither knows why they chose capons as a project, except that they didn't know what else to take, and capons "sounded interesting."

After they have raised the birds for about five months, until they weigh 15 to 20 pounds liveweight, they dress them and sell them privately.

"After the first year of dressing them, I said 'this is it,' " laughs Mrs. Aument, a good natured mother of six. "But, that was three years ago, and they still have them now," she adds.

And, Mrs. Aument has given up any hope of getting rid of the poultry until one more year, at least, and probably until the Lancaster County team places first if that's not next year. Paul also has hopes of getting on the team and helping it to the top.

Besides the capon group, Joyce also belongs to the crafts group in the Solanco Club, and loves to do macrame. She also crochets, does sand art, and sews her own clothing.

And, she helps around her Dad's 130 acre farm by feeding the capons and by doing other little odd jobs.

At present, she is preparing to go back to school for another nine months. As always, the cycle has begun anew. 4-H is over for the summer, a record is broken, and school is ready to begin.

And, now, also, Joyce has next year to look forward to, when hopefully she will bring the poultry judging award home with her in her arms.

USDA needs help

WASHINGTON, D.C. - The U. S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) needs help to reach decisions on federal meat and poultry inspection regulations. Time is short, but there is still a chance to make your views known on a proposed regulation that is of major importance.

Consumers have until October 25 to tell the USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service what they want as a standard for poultry franks, poultry bologna, and other cooked poultry sausages. Similar to the red meat hot dog, bologna, and knockwurst, these products are currently marketed under labeling such as "Chicken Weiners" or "Turkey Franks." A proposed standard, published in the July 27 Federal Register, requires that finished products contain no more that 25 per cent fat, not less than 12 per cent protein, and no more than 5 parts moisture to 1 part protein. Processors are required to label cooked poultry in one of three ways: (1) if giblets are used in the ingredients, the product must be labeled, for example, as "chicken franks with giblets" and must contain at least 50 per cent poultry meat; (2) if one of more approved binders - such as dried milk, cereal, or soy flour are used - the product must be labeled, for example, as "chicken weiners, soy flour added"; and (3) if formulated only with poultry meat - that is without binders or giblets - the product must be labeled simply as "turkey franks," " chicken hot dogs," or the like.

Comments regarding any of the proposed regulation changes must be submitted in duplicate to the Hearing Clerk, USDA, Room 112-A, Washington, D.C. 20250 before the set deadline.

Homemakers' camp is not remedial course for poor housekeepers

By SALLY BAIR
Feature Writer

The women leaned intently over their projects, picking up the tiny beads with the needle and working them into place on the thread. There was an air of serious concentration as they tried to master the skills to complete their bead corsages and crosses.

Talking was subdued, but there was good natured assistance offered as appeals for help were heard among the women when they no longer understood the written instructions.

These women were part of a group of 55 homemakers attending the Homemakers' camp held recently at Camp Swatara, a quiet setting in a lovely wooded area on the edges of Lebanon and Berks Counties. Berks, Cumberland, Dauphin, Lancaster, Lebanon, and York Counties were represented as the women came together for fun and fellowship and the opportunity to learn something new.

The craft areas in the large main hall of the camp were filled with women eagerly learning the intricacies of a new craft. In addition to the bead work, women were making "trapunto" picutres, constructed from two pieces of fabric sewn together with certain areas stuffed for a three-dimensional effect.

Another large group was working on fiber rush foot stools. These women were doing hard physical work, and many had blisters to show for their persistence in pulling the long cords tightly into place.

Chairman of this year's camp is Mrs. Charles Bupp, Glenn Rock R2, who has been coming continuously for 22 years. With a laugh, Mrs. Bupp said her husband feels it is only fair for her to come to camp so that he can go deer and bear hunting. She said that the program remains basically the same throughout the years. Occasionally a change may be tried, but often they return to the old way. Last year they cut back on devotions, but the women still wanted to have them so they went back to having them four times during the camp.

At this point, Mrs. Bupp says, "I come to see the friends I've made over the years."

Mrs. Henry Matson, Jr., Linglestown R4, agrees, "I like to meet the friends I've made, since sometimes it's the only place we see each other."

Mrs. Matson may have more experience at homemakers' camp than anyone.

She said, "I started coming in 1936 and I've only missed a few. Our home economist asked me to come and I liked it and kept coming."

Cheerfully, Mrs. Matson said she will continue to come "as long as I can." She said the crafts change each year, but as she pulled the heavy rushes used to make the stool, she said, "This one isn't too easy."

Mrs. Olive Stewart, 1102 Second Avenue, Oberlin, is attending camp for the first time. She said she chose to come, "because I've always liked camping, and my family doesn't like camping. I'm enjoying it very much. I like being with people and I like working with my hands."

Mrs. Stewart works in a computer center for the federal government where everyone works all the shifts. She wanted to come to camp so much that she went to camp on Sunday evening, then returned to her work on the night shift, and came back to camp in the morning. The mother of teen-agers, she said, "I think it does everyone good to be away sometimes."

The camp is traditional in many ways, but there are accommodations made to the women whose ages range from mid-twenties to low-eighties. The first evening, Sunday, is given over to devotions, vespers and candlelight service, and an inspirational or educational program. This year there was a slide presentation of a People-to-People tour to Europe, including Russia. It was given by Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Bupp of Glen Rock in York County.

On Monday, following a hearty camp-style breakfast, the women got down to the serious business of camp, learning to make crafts. There is always a variety of crafts offered, so they can choose something that is of interest to them. Mrs. Bupp said the planning committee welcomes suggestions each year and they try to vary the crafts.

Monday afternoon allows the women a choice of activities, including free time and swimming, but this reporter observed that the homemakers worked on their crafts until they were dragged to the tables because the food was rapidly cooling. Immediately following the noon meal, they returned to their crafts once more.

Monday night is designed as a night of fun, and this year, Bicentennial fashions were featured along with skits about an historical event in each county.

Mrs. Pat Huff, left, extension home economist in Dauphin County, shows the next step in making the fiber rush foot stool.

Chairman Mrs. Charles Bupp, York County, left, talks about the crafts program with Mrs. Louise Schaeffer of Lebanon County.

China's agriculture and sales potential to be studied

NEW YORK, N.Y. - Christopher H. Phillips, president of the National Council for U.S.-China Trade, announced today that a major conference will be held later this year in St. Louis, focusing on China's agriculture and the prospects for U.S. Sales. In the past five years, Phillips said, U.S. companies have sold China a massive $1.4 billion worth of agricultural commodities. The People's Republic of China has been one of the most important markets for U.S. farm products in the past five years.

The U.S. has sold $205 million worth of fertilizer ammonia plants to China, and agricultural-related equipment such as pick-up hay balers and fertilizer bagging equipment. US-made insecticides, herbicides, and fungicides, animal hormones, and hybrid plants have gone to China. American tobacco has been blended in Chinese cigarettes.

Chinese foreign trade officials have visited American farms, US agricultural equipment manufacturers, and agricultural research stations. Scientific missions between the US and the PRC have studied insect control, plant development, and agricultural mechanization.

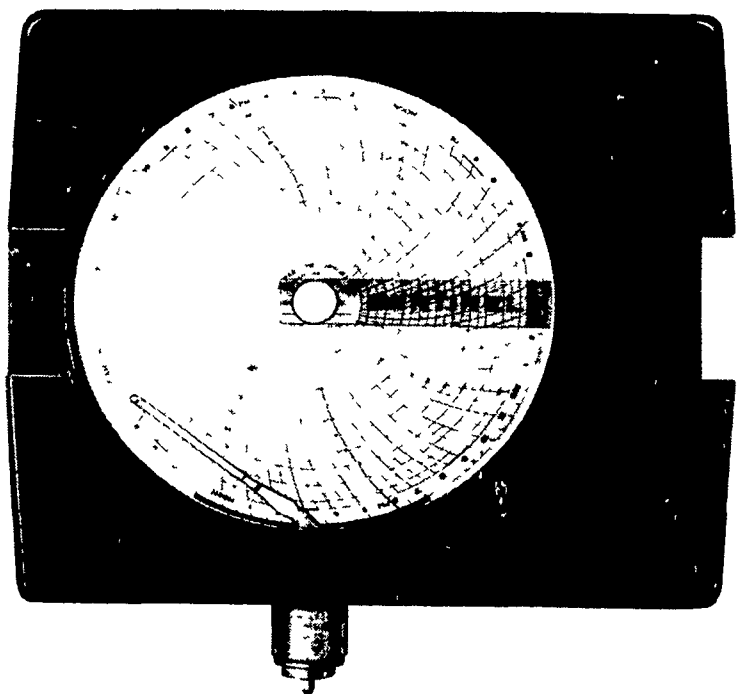
But what are the prospects for future US sales of farm goods and equipment The state of China's agricultural industry and prospects for continuing US sales will be the subject of a major conference to be held in St. Louis on November 18. The all-day meeting will be sponsored by the Washington, D.C. - based National Council for US-China Trade, and cosponsored by the St. Louis Regional Commerce and Growth Association, in cooperation with the United States Department of Commerce and the St. Louis Council on World Affairs of the World Trade Club of St. Louis.

The conference will give details on the present state of China's agriculture, the prospects for agricultural sales to them in the future, who has sold what agricultural goods to China, and what companies have exhibited agricultural items in China. The world's leading experts on these subjects will give presentations and the problems of doing business relative to these topics will be discussed. The conference is expected to attract worldwide interest.

Inquiries concerning registration should be addressed to Melvin W. Searls, Jr. at the National Council for US-China Trade, 1050 Seventeenth Street, N.W., Suite 350, Washington, D.C. 20036 or Joseph M. de Rotaeche, at the St. Louis Regional Commerce and Growth Association, 10 Broadway, St. Louis, Missouri 63102, Telephone: (314) 231-5555.

The National Council for US-China Trade is a non-profit, membership organization, with over 330 member firms throughout the US, whose purpose is to facilitate and promote two-way trade with China. The Council acts as host to Chinese trade officials visiting to the United States, sponsors visits of U.S. commercial groups to China, and is contact point for reciprocal exhibitions in the two countries.

THE SENTINEL



Round-the-clock guardian of stored milk temperature

If you depend upon your milk check for a living, protect that income by insuring milk quality.

The least expensive, single-payment insurance obtainable is the Sentinel — the heavy-duty, 10-inch recorder which charts round-the-clock temperature of your milk-cooling or holding tank.

Assure yourself — and your processor — that proper milk temperature is always maintained.

Keep a permanent log of compressor operation and tank cooling or pre-cooling efficiency, from first filling to pickup.

Cleaning temperatures — increasingly questioned by sanitarians — are recorded on the same chart.

At little added cost, the Sentinel is available with provision for actuating an alarm or warning light if milk holding temperature rises above pre-set level.

Remember — if it prevents the loss of only one tank of milk, the Sentinel has paid its own way.

Charolais cows cited

HOUSTON, Tex. - Two additional purebred Charolais cows - one from Ohio and the other from Minnesota - have been designated by the American-International Charolais Assn. as Charolais Dams of Distinction, based on the number and growth rates of their progeny.

The two cows received the distinction awards after having weaned five calves by the time they were seven years of age, each with a herd ratio of 100 or more. The first award in the recently-inaugurated program went to a purebred cow of Harlan Hecht, Paynesville, Minn., in May this year.

Second animal to receive the award was Olentangy McBlair Dale, a June 19, 1968, polled Charolais cow bred and owned by Olentangy Farms, Waldo, Ohio. The purebred cow has produced six progeny in her eight years, the first five of which qualified her for the award. The in-herd average adjusted weaning weight ratio of the calves was 105.

Also receiving the Sterling Dam of Distinction awards recently was 69 Fairfield Apolly 60, a March 24, 1969, cow bred by Fairfield Farms, Alberta, Minn. This cow, also polled, has produced five progeny, with an average within herd adjusted weaning weight ration of 112.

Homemakers'

Probably one of the highlights of this camp is a unique sharing of snacks and snacks ideas. In each cabin, a "table" is set aside to hold goodies brought from home by the campers. On Monday night, the campers make the rounds of all the cabins and sample the "snacks," and incidentally, learn a lot of new ideas to increase their families' girth - and mirth.

York County Extension Home Economist Mrs. Joan Lambertson said the camp usually averages around 50 women, but could easily handle 80-100.

One feature of camp which reflects camp programs everywhere is that the women share the household chores. They take their turns setting the tables and clearing the dishes but a professional staff does the cooking and actual dish-washing.

Mrs. Hilda Rank, 511 Chestnut Street, Lebanon, took time from setting the table to say she first attended camp in 1953 "with a neighbor of mine. We were members of Farm Women 8 and she invited me to come." Mrs. Rank has cataracts and so is prevented from doing the crafts, but she said she likes "everything" about the camp, and especially the "good fellowship."

As at any camp, there is a camp nurse on duty, who is Mrs. Violet Helenthal, 965 E. Main Street, New Holland. She said she has had no unusual problems, but the most common complaint is indigestion. She said, "Everyone is having a good time and having fun."

Another Lancaster Countian is serving as music director at the camp. A resident of Brethren Village, Mrs. Mary Forney said she has been leading songs for about ten years and will continue "as long as they ask me." A former parttime music teacher, she said, "they seem to enjoy the singing. I don't worry about the quality, just so they enjoy it." Mrs. Forney taught quilling last year at the camp, and is skilled in many crafts. She is currently interested in making pressed flower notes, which she had on display at a craft table featuring items made at home by camp participants.

Mrs. Robert Good, Denver R1, said she enrolled in camp after reading about it in the homemakers' newsletter distributed by the Cooperative Extension Service. She said it caught her eye because she had just read a column by humorist Erma Bombeck which told of her being sent to camp by her family. She said she suggested it to her husband as a joke and he took her up on it.

In reality, she then talked to a close friend, Mrs. Henry Youndt, East Earl, R1, who had also read about it in the newletter. The two decided to try it.

Mrs. Youndt said she is enjoying the "fellowship and relaxation - and the chance to get away from canning jars!" She said she would encourage other young people to come. Both she and Mrs. Good have a six-year-old daughter and a three-year-old son.

Mrs. Good added that she is really enjoying her first experience, "especially since I've found a few friends." She is ready to come back and bring another friend.

"It is a welcome break from the routine," she revealed.

Another Lancaster countian, Mrs. Herbert B. Frey, Manheim, said she came first in 1972 because, "I came as a kid and I wanted to try and relive my childhood."

"It doesn't work" she added with a hearty laugh. More seriously, she said, "I enjoy everything. And I do have just as much fun as when I was a kid."

Perspectives change, however, and Mrs. Frey admitted, "When I was young, you came early so you could get a top bunk. Now you come early so you can get a bottom bunk!"

Berks Countian Mrs. Wilbur Stricker, Robesonia R1, was teaching the others the art of "trapunto," and she explained that the camp was a new experience for her.

"Just meeting people makes it worthwhile," she said. She also said many women were so eager they wanted to try all three crafts.

Mrs. John Yocum, Landisville, is back for her second year, having come with Mrs. Frey in 1972.

"It is definitely worthwhile. All the ladies are so nice, and they had an impressive versper service," she said.

Sitting nearby, Mrs. Mark Stoddard, Jonestown R1, added, "It is a wonderful group of women, and the companionship is very valuable. They're terrific."

She said she has gotten to know many women just by sitting at different tables at mealtime.

Short-sheeting the beds, pillow fights, "initiation" of newcomers are as much a part of camp as hearty meals and devotions.

Fellowship and relaxation remain the key to the camp's popularity, and are the main reason some homemakers always plan their vacation around camp dates. Fellowship is also the reason first time campers feel immediately welcome and part of the group.

Homemakers' Camp offers a pleasant interlude to women caught up in the hectic rush of canning and freezing. It can be "a welcome break."

$4100 top price at Simmental Sale

BIRD-IN-HAND - Pennsylvanis's first Simmental cattle sale was held last Saturday at Beechdale Farms, here, with a crowd of approximately 250 - 300 spectators from at least 15 states enjoying the auction and taking in the beauty of the premises.

Dr. Thomas Conrad, who runs the 65 acres farm, and who sponsored the event, had nothing but praise for the turnout of the sale.

"It was outstanding," he commented. "We had a gross of $64,235 for 49 lots." The average per lot was $1311.

Most of the other breeders agreed with Conrad and were "real pleased" with the results, even though the market has lowered since the time when Simmentals were first introduced into the country.

The top animal sold was a purebred bull consigned to the sale by Simmental Breeders Cardston, Ltd., Cardston, Alberta, Canada. Beechdale Farms purchased the animal for $4100.

Among the other top-selling animals was a purebred bull consigned to the sale by Kingfield Farms, King City, Ontario, Canada. This bull was purchased by John Swets, Cedar Lake, Ind., and brought $3500.

Another full-blood Simmental sold by Charles Blunt and Allan Rummell, Carrollton, Ohio, brought $3500. The animal was purchased by John Swets.

The next lowest priced animals were a pair of ¾ blood animals consigned to the sale by Beechdale Farm. The lot brought $2500.

Other prices were $1300 and $1100 for animals that were ¾ blood.

Conrad was the major consignor to the sale with 35 purebreds and crossbreeds. Guest consignors were Gene Folck, Springfield, Ohio; Hidden Lanes Farm, Stockton, N.J.; KBJ Ranches, Xenia, Ohio; Kingfield H.B. Simmentals, King City, Ontario, Canada; McClorey Brothers, Cincinnati, Ohio; Simmental Breeders Cardston, Ltd., Alberta, Canada; and Stone Rows Farm, Stockton, N.J.

Conrad is well known for his work with the Simmental breed. He made history years ago when he achieved the first successful calf embryo transplant in the northeastern United States. He also has the distinction of breeding the only seven-eights bull on stud in the nation. The animal was purchased by Atlantic Breeder's Cooperative and was the highest-priced bull in all breeds at the Pennsylvania Bull Test Sale five months ago.

A relative newcomer to farming, Conrad began livestock breeding in 1971. Before that he taught college and was a financial planner in Washington, D.C.

Dr. Thomas Conrad, who sponsored Pennsylvania's first Simmental sale at his home at Beechdale Farms, Bird-In-Hand, poses with one of his purebreds.

The Pharisees also came unto him, tempting him, and saying unto him, Is it lawful for a man to put away his wife for every cause?

FIELD CULTIVATOR

HESSTON, Kans. - Hesston Corporation has entered a new field of farm equipment with the introduction of a new heavy-duty field cultivator for high horsepower tractors.

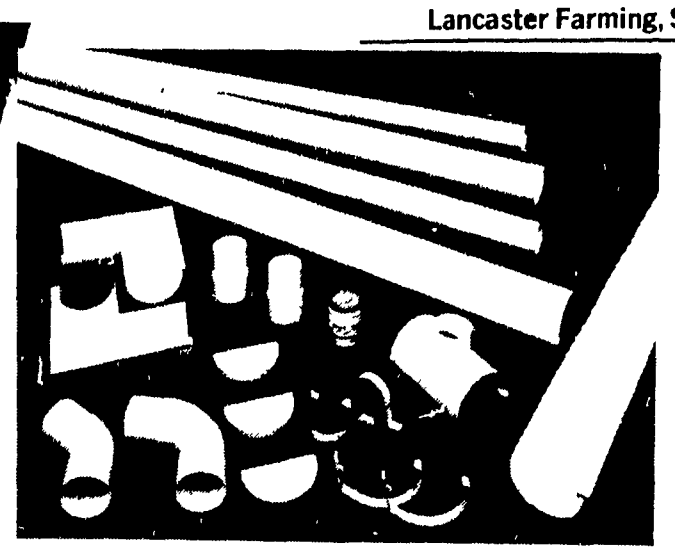
The Model 2210 heavy-duty field cultivator is built to handle the strain placed on tillage equipment by tractors of 100 horsepower or over and is available in four widths from 25 feet up to 46 feet.

The unique Hesston design stresses clean lines and rugged strength. As seen in the photo insert, four-inch box beam frame sections give the Model 2210 extra strength not found in other units.

The transport capability of the heavy-duty field cultivator features safer more convenient vertical folding. The wings slant inward in the raised position producing a lower center of gravity for better overall balance and weight control.

In addition, there are spring-loaded shanks to take hard use. The shanks move up as much as 11 inches to let any obstruction pass, then reset automatically. Hydraulic depth control allows precise tailoring of the shank depth - as deep as seven inches.

The cultivator is completely hydraulic operated and can be controlled from the tractor seat. Recent field site introductions to dealers brought about comments praising the clean design, rugged construction, exceptional trash clearance, good vibration on shanks, versatility and exceptional flotation and depth control.



VINYL GUTTERS AND DOWNSPOUTS

Vinyl Craft maintenance - free and easy-to-install heavy duty, solid vinyl (PVC) gutters and downspouts for farm houses and farm and agricultural structures are being introduced nationally by Plastic Building Products Co., 2206 Frankfort Ave., Louisville, Ky. 40206. Rugged Vinyl Craft gutters and downspouts have the virtue of being impervious to acids, caustic solutions, farm chemicals, manure, liquid animal waste, feeds and other farm materials that attack, damage, rust and corrode metal gutters. Its advantages are best stated in negatives for it will not rot, sag, chip, blister, crack, corrode or be affected by ice or snow. It never rusts, leaks or requires paint.

TRIVIA

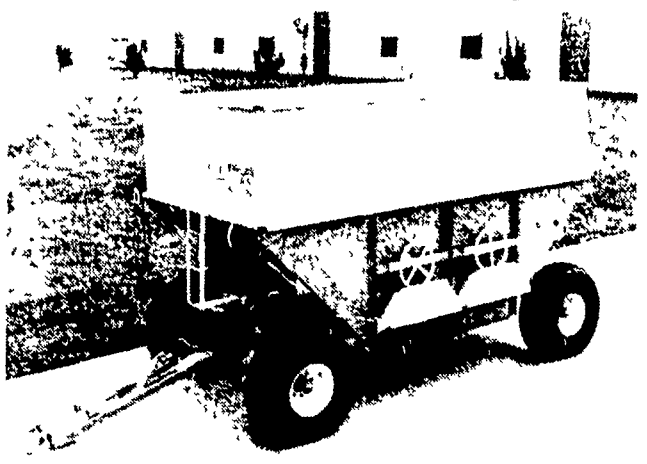
What's New



DMI Introduces New 450 Bushel Side Dump Gravity Grain Wagon

The DMI Model D450 "Big-Little" grain wagon has a 450 bushel capacity that is designed to provide even distribution of weight and a low center of gravity. Two large side door outlets permit fast, even flow of grain discharge, and are equipped with rack and pinion drive mechanisms for jam-proof, maintenance free operation. An auto-steer guidance system gives stable, dependable tracking with an oscillating front axle to eliminate twist and strain on the hopper.

The hopper is made of 11 gauge steel with 14 gauge extension sides that have overload stress factors built in. Standard equipment includes: 16.5 times 16.1 - 10 ply (rib tread) tires on 10 inches flotation wheels; ¼ inches plate boxed tongue; 15 ton under carriage; 2½ inche spindles; ⅜ inch plate boxed axles: four-wheel surge actuator brakes; and hopper access ladder at the front. The entire unit is painted rust resistant primer and heavy-duty finish coat. DMI, Inc., P.O. Box 65, Goodfield, Illinois 61742.

New Case Plows

RACINE, WIS. — J I Case Company has introduced four new plow series ranging in size, design and price to meet a variety of ground working conditions and farmer requirements. A number of options in bottom sizes and types, plus the capability of adding bottoms, allows the owner to match his plow to available tractor horsepower.

Included in the new plow line is the 300 Series economy plow, available in 3, 4, or 5 bottoms and recommended for lower horsepower tractors. The 3 bottom can be expanded to 4 bottoms, the 4 bottom to 5 or 6 bottoms. A 300 Series plow fits a Category II in-furrow hitch bar (with or without quick coupler) or can be equipped with an optional A-frame for 3-point hitch tractors with top link draft control.

Wide open trash gangways are features of new Case 400 and 500 Series plows. The 400 unit has a 29½ in. under-clearance and 30 in. rank; the 500 model a 31½ in. clearance and 34 in. rank. Both plow series offer a choice of three beams to meet varied soil conditions: spring automatic reset beams for stumpy or stoney land, cushion trip beams for land with fewer hidden obstructions, and heavy-duty shear pin beams for stone-free areas.

The 400 is offered with 5, 6, 7 and 8 16-18 in. bottoms, the 500 with 4, 5, 6 and 7 18-20 in. bottoms. Addition of optional extra bottoms increases the tilling capacities of both units. Both 400 and 500 Series plows are offered with in-furrow or on-land hitch.

Fast hydraulic rollover of bottoms, plus elimination of need for laying lands or traveling across headlands, saves field time with the new Case 600 Series plow. The two-way plow is available with an in-furrow hitch in 3 or 4 bottoms or on-land hitch with 4 or 5 bottoms. Plow can be used on irrigated land, flat lands and hilly fields, working well for deep rooted crops such as sweet corn, sugar beets and potatoes.

For additional information on the 300, 400, 500, and 600 Series moldboard plows, see your nearest Case dealer or write to the Agricultural Equipment Division, J I Case Company, Racine, Wis. 53404.

Society 11

Farm Women Society 11 met at noon on August 26 at the Robert Fulton Inn, in celebration of their 50th anniversary. Twenty-seven members and 16 guests were in attendance. Preceding the luncheon, guests were introduced.

After the meal, roll call was answered by each member telling the time and place they had joined the society.

During the business session, the sunshine committee gave a report. The audit and nominating committees were also appointed. And, the bus trip committee reported plans to go on October 14 to Churchtown, St. Peter's Village, Ott's Exotic Gardens, and the Collegeville Inn. The bus will leave the Quarryville Methodist Church parking lot about 8:30 a.m., and will return at approximately 5 p.m.

Freeda Huber led the program which consisted of singing the Farm Women Song, which was composed by Mrs. Laura Linton of Society 11.

Past presidents of the society were recognized. A memorial tribute to deceased members was given by Mary Swarr.

Musical selections were also given.

A panel of six members reviewed the highlights of the activities of the society during the past 50 years. An arrangement of the patriotic song, "America for Me" was given by four members, and the meeting closed with the singing of the Society's theme song - "Brighten the Corner."

The September meeting will be held on Sept. 30 at the home of Mrs. Martha McComsey, Quarryville. Invitations for meeting places and program suggestions for the year should be brought to the September meeting for the use of the 1977 book committee.

SE District holds 4-H dairy show

ALLENTOWN - The 31st Annual Southeast District 4-H Dairy Show was held recently at the Allentown Fairgrounds, here. Two hundred and one animals were exhibited by 137 4-H Club members from nine Southeastern Pennsylvania counties including Berks, Bucks, Chester, Lackawanna, Lehigh, Monroe, Montgomery, Northampton, and Schuylkill. Among the animals exhibited were 90 Holsteins, 30 Brown Swiss, 10 Milking Shorthorn, 37 Jerseys, 5 Ayrshires, and 29 Guernseys.

Judges for the show were Jack Fairchild, Berwick, Holstein breeder, and Billy Heath, Westminster, Md. for Ayrshires, Milking Shorthorn, Brown Swiss, Jerseys, and Guernseys.

During the course of the show, exhibitors who did an outstanding job of fitting and showing their animals were given Master Fitter or Master Showman awards. No champions were selected in these categories. Judges for these fitting and showman awards were: Rhelda Royer, Lancaster County Holstein breeder, Alan Bair, Lancaster County Extension agent; and Lee Kilmer, Susquehanna County Extension agent.

Charles Suloff, show manager and Berks County Extension agent, estimated that 400 spectators were present during the day. Suloff also noted that the blue ribbon animals in each class are eligible to compete in the Pennsylvania Dairy Show which will be held Monday, September 20, at the Farm Show Building in Harrisburg. At this Junior Dairy Show the Southeast district winners will compete against winners from six other district shows in the state.

This event was sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Offices of the nine counties and the Cooperative Extension Service of the Pennsylvania State University.

Homeowners cut mowing time in half with commercial rider

On the Yazoo pictured above you can mow up to 16 acres in a day You don't follow it with a trim mower It does it all

You can trim under low-hanging shrubs in a series of nimble passes, many times faster than a man with a walk mower You can cut a clean radius right around a tree trunk or a pole Trim the edges of ponds, embankments, curbs Around flower beds, pipe stands, under benches, along walls and fences, in and out of ditches In corners In high grass or low Evenly Beautifully Without scalping or skipping

When You're Done Riding, You're Done Mowing.

State Senator Henry Sayler, of St Petersburg, Florida, says, 'Mowing my one-acre place was killing my weekends On the advice of some cemetery men, I switched from a belly-slung rider to the YR 48 Now I cut all my grass, including the trimming, in forty-five minutes It's fun to drive, very responsive"

What Commercial Men Say

Commercial turf men tell us their operators hate being shifted from the Yazoo to another machine

The Yazoo is specifically designed for mowing It has front wheel drive It cuts in front, where you can see It steers from the rear

Using a simple short-throw lever, you can move forward or backward or stop with your finger-tips and steer with your other hand It's that simple

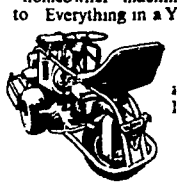
Ken Schoeni, who is Superintendent of Athletic Facilities at Bowling Green University Ohio, says about one mowing job 'It used to take two men three days Now one man does it in a day and a half on a Yazoo"

W G "Buck" Siler, who is pro owner of Longview Golf Club in Greensboro, N C , says, "With the tractor, I was using two hand mowers trimming continuously during the season After I got the Yazoo, we had one hand mower trimming two to three hours a week"

Commercial vs."Homeowner"

When machines break down, wages go on

That's why commercial men don't buy 'homeowner" machines They can't afford to Everything in a Yazoo is industrial grade There is no compromise



In residential use, it should last you a lifetime

What About Price?

Most of the best-known homeowner makes will cost you more than a comparable-size commercial Yazoo, some considerably more

All five Yazoo Commercial Riders are built to the same design

YR 76 YR 60 YR 48 YR 42 YR 36

Your Yazoo dealer will be glad to advise you, and let you try one for size on your own grounds

One caution Last, year, commercial cutters ran the dealers and the factory out of stock in mid-season So act now Don't end up in a shotgun marriage with a mower you'll always feel dissatisfied with

CAN

IM-PRUV-ALL

SILAGE MAKE YOU

MONEY?

Since silage is superior to dry feeds in TDN per acre, the farmer can expect higher dollar yields from his silage. The increased TDN in silage means the farmer can feed more cattle with the same crop. He can produce more beef, more milk, and of course more dollars. But there are some dangers. Not all silage is the same. The farmer who wants to make sure that he makes more money with silage must make excellent silage. To insure consistent silage, he NEEDS our fermentation formulas.

Bicentennial farm

Two brothers and a sister run 'family farm'

The Hagenbuch farm is situated in a mountainous region of Montour County, and has been in the family since 1853.

By JOANNE SPAHR

DANVILLE — On the living room walls hang portraits of the generations who have passed, living on the farm for their life spans and then bequeathing it to others in the family. The furniture is rustic, and many pieces have histories of their own. It's been a "family farm" for over a century, and the present owners love it and are proud of the legacy it carries.

The farm is the Hagenbuch farm situated near Danville, Montour County, and it presently belongs to two brothers and a sister, Bruice, Andrew, and Julia Hagenbuch.

Bruice is the biggest history buff of the threesome and has the deeds and most of the history figured out.

"It all started on April 1, 1853," he explains. "That's when our great-grandfather, William Hagenbuch, rode a horse down from Hidlay's Church, Columbia County." Although the distance sounds enormous, it was actually only about a 25-mile stretch that the ancestor Hagenbuch traveled.

Apparently, William saw something he liked, because he purchased the property, which consisted of about 100 acres of not overly fertile land situated in mountains, and brought the five children of his second marriage with him to live.

"We never knew the family of his first wife," says Bruice, intimating that there is a tiny thread of Hagenbuch history which remains unraveled.

The children that left Columbia County and came to the present day homestead numbered five — two sons and three daughters. Of those three sons, one was Hiram Hagenbuch, grandfather of the present-day trio.

All seven of the ancestral Hagenbuchs moved into a log house and worked on the farm until 1879 when William died. He, along with most of the other deceased members of the family, is buried about a half mile from the farm in Oak Grove Cemetery

After his death, all five children shared ownership of the estate. It was during that time that Bruice, Julia, and Andrew believe the property fell into disrepair.

"Think about it," says Bruice, "would you want to work really hard on a place if you only owned one-fifth of it?" Human nature dictates that the answer to this question is a definite "no", so it is easily understood why the farm lost some of its finer touches during this period.

Then, in 1897 Hiram died, and his widow inherited his portion of the farm. By this time Hiram's number of shares had grown from one to three. Something else had also grown — the number in the Hagenbuch clan. Hiram and his wife had borne 12 children, one of which was Israel, the father of Julia, Andrew, and Bruice.

A year after Hiram's death, the widow (Grandmother) Hagenbuch became the owner of all five shares of the farm, and in 1900 she built the house in which the family now lives. She built it on a hill above the log house, and had it constructed as a two story, eight room home finished in oak and chestnut.

When grandmother Hagenbuch moved into the new domicile, the log cabin became empty. And, in time, her son, Israel, and his wife took up occupancy in the lower home. During their residency in the log house, two joyous events occurred — the birth of the first two of their four children. Walter was born in 1910, and a year later Andrew followed.

But, in 1909, Grandmother Hagenbuch and her own elderly mother needed watchful eyes and loving hands to take care of them, so Israel, his wife, and two sons moved into the upper house to stay The log house has remained vacant ever since.

By 1913 Israel had purchased the homestead and had one more son — Bruice. And, then in 1915, the last child to come was Julia.

This is the point at which fond memories and the fun history of the farm begins for the brothers and sisters

"We always had a family farm," says Julia with a smile and a loving tone to her voice. "We all helped out."

Sixty more acres were added to the home farm in 1928. Ten years later, the eldest brother, Walter, married and left the farm to work in the insurance business in Danville.

In 1946, the farm was trasnferred to Andrew and Bruice, and in 1950 they purchased another farm to up the acreage to a total of 283. This is the point at which it has remained to this day.

From 1950 on, the three farms were run as one unit.

During their farming history, the Hagenbuchs have had Hereford beef cattle, dairy cows, brude sows, and chickens. However, since 1970, the operation has slowed down to accommodate lessening physical abilities.

During the hundred years the farm has been in the Hagenbuch family, it has undergone many changes. First of all, the appearance has been livened up quite a bit by Julia, Andrew, and Bruice and their parents before them. What used to be a house perched on top of a hill, sticking out like a sore thumb, is now a beautifully shaded and almost hidden, well-kept home with a built-in porch in the front.

"Oh, I used to beg mother to close in the porch and put in windows," related Julia. "And, she would say, 'Who vill clean ıll those windows?' "

"I guess you know who does them now," Julia continues to quip.

The farming techniques have also, naturally, become modernized. The Hagenbuchs used to employ horses for farm work, but not anymore.

"Oh, Andy was the horseman," says Julia proudly, while glancing over at her brother to gauge his reaction. "He could get those animals to do anything."

But, Andrew, along with Bruice, was eager to adopt the ıdea of tractors to do the work.

"They were the ones to buy the tractor with the rubber tires," says Julia. "Not Dad."

Actually, as the Hagenbuchs recall, they were the second family in the area to have a tractor with rubber tires.

They were also second in the township to adopt another form of progress — electric lights.

"We had our own power plant," explains Bruice. "It was a 32-volt light plant made up of 16 two-volt storage batteries lined up in a row on a shelf in the cellar."

"The whole thing was operated by what was called a "Matthews Fully Automatic Electric Light and Power Plant," he continues with a twinkle in his eye.

In the late 30's, however, a power line was put into the area and the farm was 'hooked up.'

Even though they had some early advancements and technology, Julia contends that they never had anything overly modern, but did mostly everything "the hard way."

And, Bruice and Andrew both agree that "you have to know how to farm the land" that they own. Being in a mountainous area, erosion and run-off can be serious problems.

"That's one advance that we are proud of," says Bruice, referring to the use of contour plowing techniques.

"My grandfather used to farm straight up and down the hills because it took less fence area if the field was square," says Bruice. "Then, my father started farming in the other direction, but that still wasn't enough. Now, Andy and I contour farm," he continues.

The crops that they raise are corn, oats, wheat, hay, and milo or grain sorghum. They also have a lot of land in pasture.

"We have about 100 acres of bluegrass pasture," contends Bruice. The Hagenbuchs also have about a dozen Hereford brude cows and some chickens, which Julia tends.

So, for over one hundred years the farm has been a "family farm" with everyone doing his share. Hopefully, the brothers and sister will be able to pass it to other Hagenbuchs who will keep it in the tradition it has been maintained in the past. The farm has a good legacy, and with luck and a little planning, its future will follow in the footsteps of the past.

A SPECIAL MEETING ABOUT A SPECIAL MINERAL AND ELECTRONIC SEED TREATMENT

Why do big western farmers and ranchers buy M 48 G all natural mineral by the carload? Come to the meeting and hear Dr. Corson talk about the mineral being mined in Oregon which is producing such outstanding results in the soil and in livestock and poultry feed, reducing feed consumption around 10 percent to 30 percent, drastically reducing diseases and mortality, greatly increasing fertility and hatchability and vigor. Chickens stop vent picking without debeaking. It satisfies. It stopped hog cannabolizm near Elizabethtown. Reduced cage fatigue and mortality quickly near New Holland. Will quickly condition clay or poor soil or mistreated soil. Improves soil structure fast. Produces larger and better quality and more blight, bug and disease resistant crops.

He will also tell you of a new enzyme and bacteria spray material which his company is developing which is a great help to soil and plants, holding more moisture in soil through cation exchange, plants readily absorb and store dew, less rain and irrigation is needed, and soil nutrients which have been locked in through toxic chemicals, are released.

Instead of treating sick livestock and poultry, Dr Corson says he wants to and is doing the world more good by prevention A serious afterbirth retention problem was solved in a Lanc Co. dairy in about 5 weeks. Only a few farmers have used it in the east It will make history. Dr Corson will bring 2 Mennonite farmers with him for testimonials.

TIME OF MEETING: 7:30 P.M. SEPT. 9, 1976

CARLISLE - Four Cumberland County 4-H youths had the privilege of participating in the National 4-H Citizenship Short Course at the Nation's Capital August 1st through August 7th. Beth Hemminger, Newville, R1; Karen Strock, 735 Williams Grove Rd., Mechanicsburg, Barry Yorlets, Carlisle, R7; and Tim Wentz, Carlisle, R1, were involved with 4-H members from eight other states. 4-H members learned the meaning of citizenship through seminars, group discussions, talking with legislators Schweiker and Goodling and their aides, visiting national historical sites, and debating national and international issues.

Emphasis was placed on developing plans for applying ideas for 4-H programs in their communities upon their return home. 4-H Club members dedicate their head to clearer thinking, their heart to greater loyalty, their hands to larger service and their health to better living, for their club, their community, their country and their world. One of the delegates upon his return said citizenship means "duty to my country".

Cholesterol was first linked to heart problems in 1913 when a Rusian scientist, Nikolai Anitschkov, fed synthetic cholesterol to laboratory rabbits and they developed arterial lesions. But it wasn't until 1961. when the American Heart Association, supported by what then was considered the best scientific evidence, first advised Americans to limit cholesterol intake.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Here are some questions I'm frequently asked Some of them are especially relevant to this time of year

Q. Now that we're into the summer months, do you have any suggestions for planning a picnic?

A For a picnic, plan your food needs in advance Prepare what you can before you leave, like vegetables that can be eaten raw, hard cooked eggs, and don't forget the fruit Provide for keeping cuts of meat and hamburger patties cold Buy milk when you get near your picnic grounds And don't take more than you need, but remember outdoor appetites are ravenous

Q. Our kids seem to have lost their enthusiasm for breakfast. Any suggestions?

A Here are some ideas to "turn on" your breakfast appetite Bacon and eggs are great But for variety, how about creamed chipped beef? Or turkey or ham in a cream sauce on toast? Or what about a cheeseburger for your teenagers? Or try your eggs poached with a slice of cheese on a toasted English muffin

Q. What's the lowdown on whether special diets are of any help to athletes?

A Some coaches have pet ideas about special diets for their athletes But basically, athletes' food needs are no different from the rest of ours The athlete needs balanced meals composed of a wide variety of foods from the four food groups Bigger portions of foods high in carbohydrates and fats will give him the extra energy he needs

Q. What is your opinion of having a salad served as the main course at dinner, especially in hot weather?

A Salads are ideal warm weather food A salad can be the main dish of your meal, or almost the whole meal Use both fruit and cottage cheese on lettuce and greens Add chunks of meat, or cold cuts, nuts, or kidney beans, and serve other vegetables on the side with buttered crackers and milk

Q. Is being overweight really serious—or is it just a matter of appearance?

A If you think being overweight isn't serious consider this Here's what overweight can do to you—It may injure your arteries and your heart Being too heavy increases your risk if you need surgery It slows you up and this in itself causes you to burn fewer calories Being overweight may overburden your joints and invite arthritis

Q. What is your opinion on snacks for children? And what about sweets?

A It's best to offer your children snacks at the same time each day, but not too soon before a meal Milk, fruit juice, peanut butter, or plain crackers spread with a layer of cottage cheese are nutritious But snacks like candy, cake, and other sweets may spoil appetites for regular meals Offer sweets after a regular meal

Hot cattle don't necessarily eat more feed overall than cool cattle, but they eat it faster, according to tests conducted by dairy scientists at the University of Missouri-Columbia.

Hot cattle eat 10 percent more feed per minute when the feedlot temperature is 90 degrees than when it is 60 degrees. The scientists also found that both hot and cool cattle consumed 65 to 75 percent of their forage within the first two hours.

In contrast to the 1950s and 1960s, when the postwar "baby boom" gave a decidedly youthful cast to the American population, the U.S. is entering a period when its non-working older citizens will be increasing in both numbers and average age.

The oldest man ever to be nominated for president or vice president was Henry Gassaway Davis of West Virginia. He was 80 years and 235 days old when he was nominated at the Democratic Convention at St Louis, Missouri, in July, 1904.

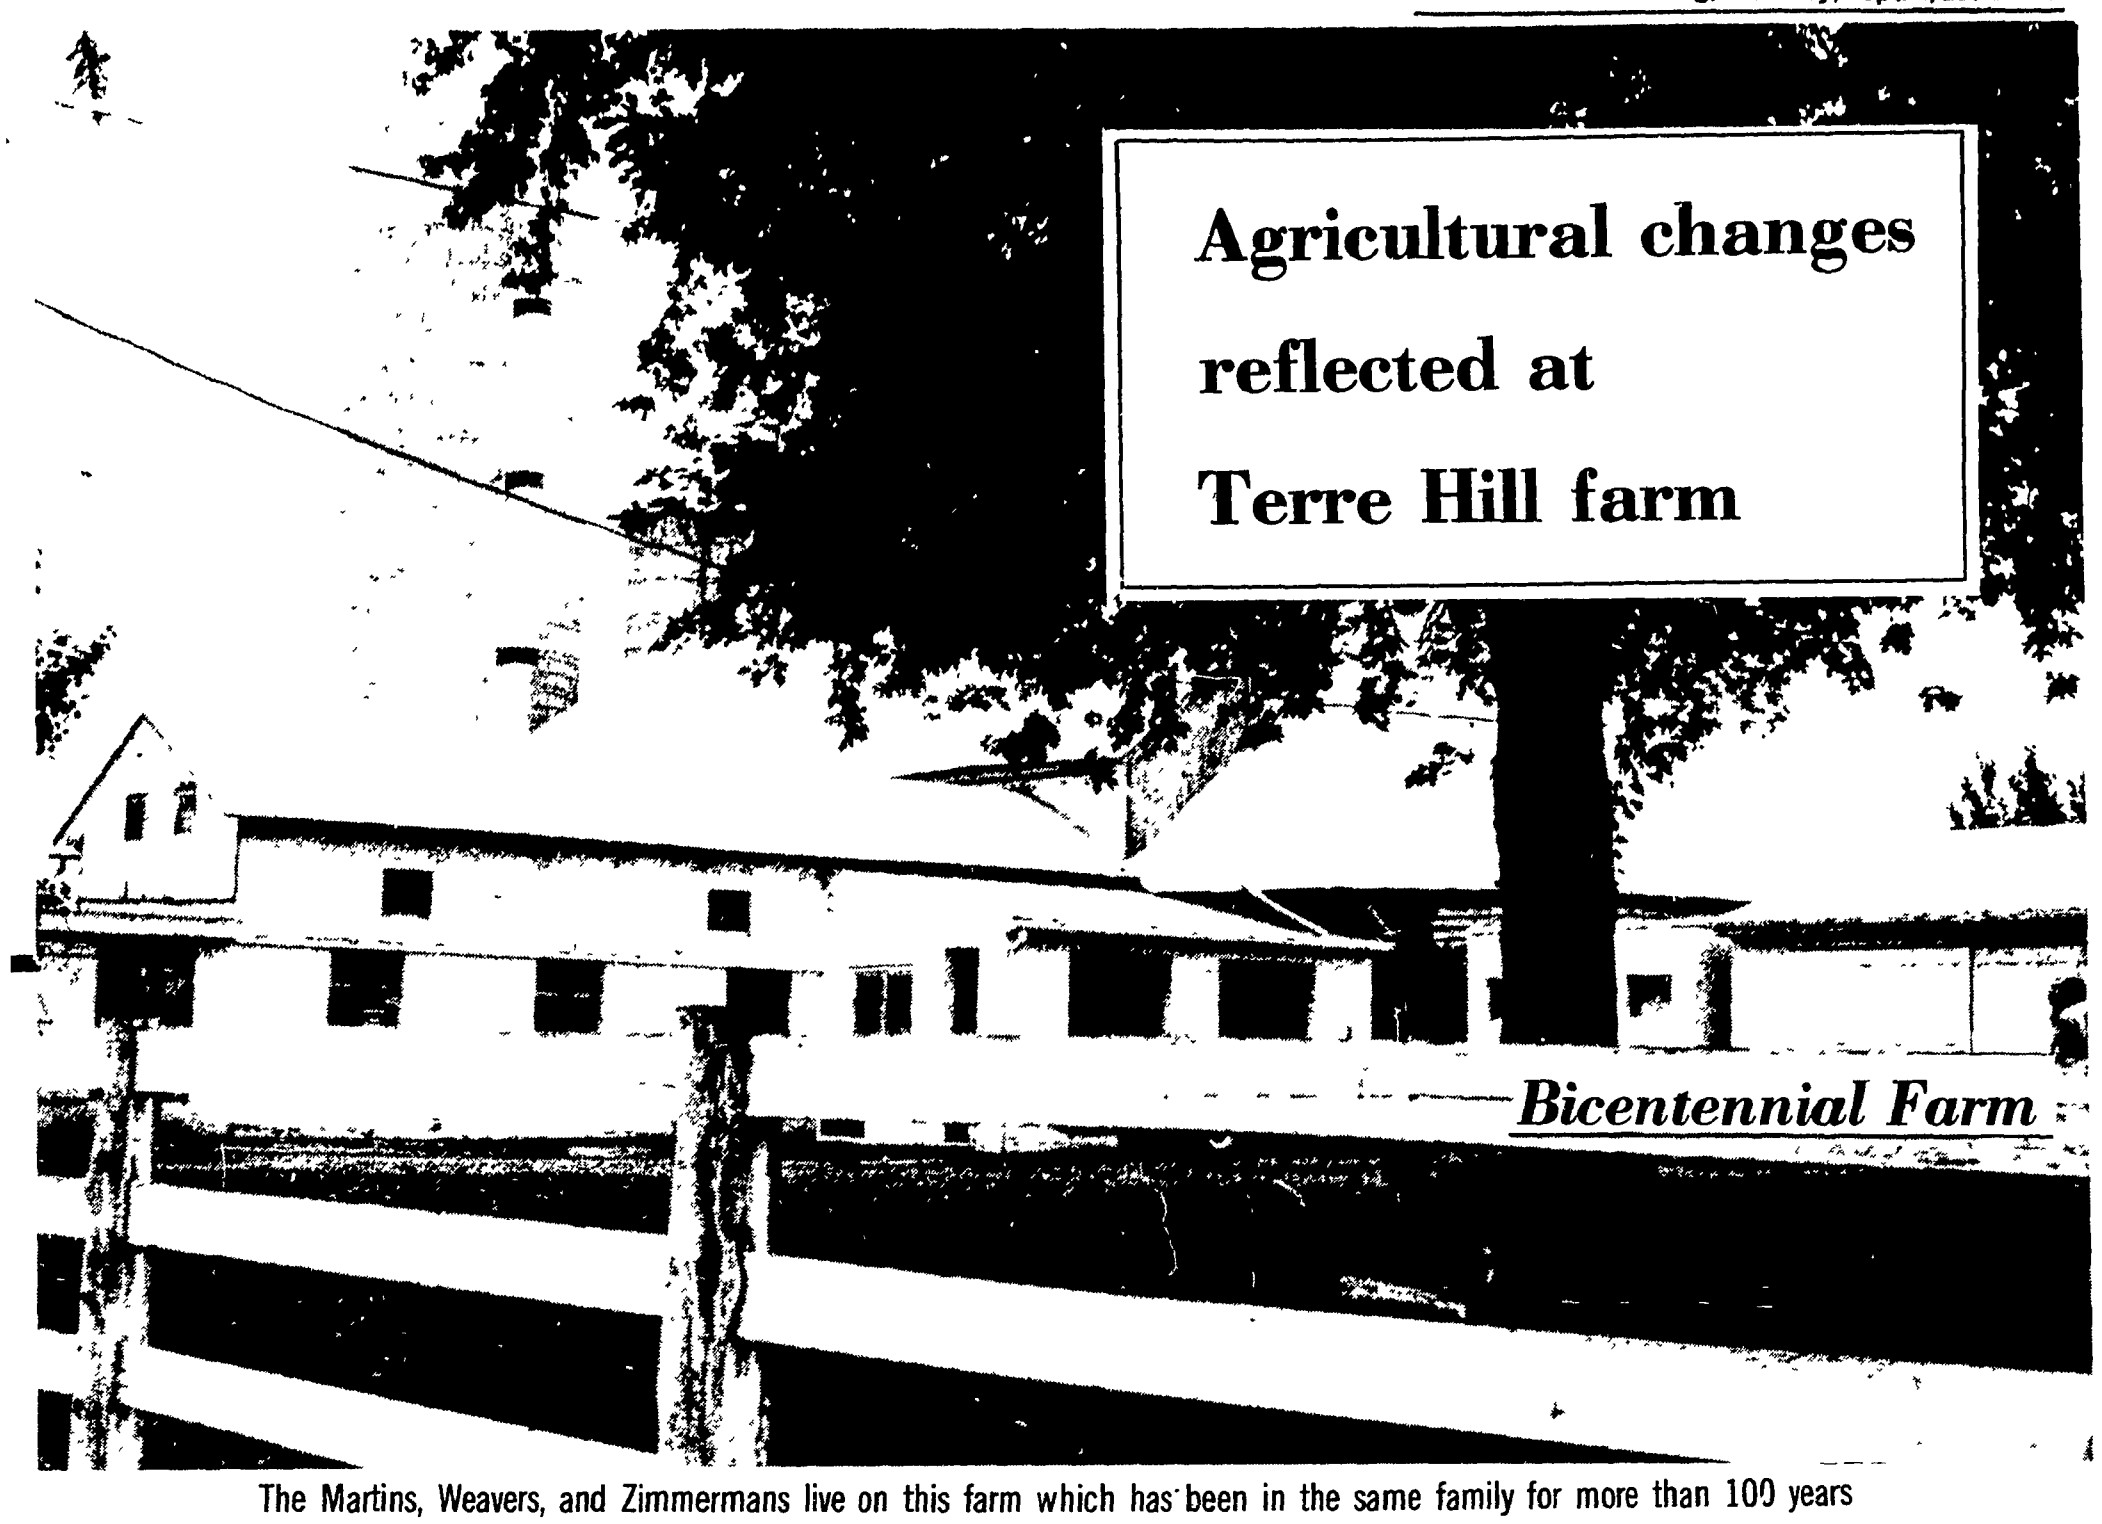
Agricultural changes reflected at Terre Hill farm



Bicentennial Farm

The Martins, Weavers, and Zimmermans live on this farm which has been in the same family for more than 100 years

By DIETER KRIEG

TERRE HILL - Farmers, engineers, and efficiency experts have come up with all kinds of ideas to make tractors and equipment work better, but no one has yet devised a piece of machinery which is tuned to a dinner bell.

Such a "machine" existed on the Chester M. Weaver farm several decades ago, and probably quite a few others as well.

Clayton Martin, Weaver's father-in-law and former owner of the 78 acre farm near here, recalls the days when his horse would step into "high gear" upon hearing the sound which "spelled" lunchtime. "He'd whinney and hurry up - go out to the other end of the field and hurry back," Martin said. Like many another farmer of the time, Martin also had horses which would obey voice commands - something else the modern "iron horses" will not do.

In spite of the several advantages the farmer had while working with horses, Martin says he liked the tractor even more. "I enjoyed it as much as an automobile on the road, because tractors didn't get tired and you didn't have to unhitch'em," he commented. He purchased his first tractor, a John Deere B, in 1937. It by itself could pull as much as five horses.

A second John Deere B was purchased in 1946, but even then, Martin didn't get rid of all of his equines. Two of the five were kept for planting and cultivating corn.

"Five horses could pull two spring tooth harrows which had a combined width of about 12 feet," Martin said. But even though his first tractor could pull no more than that, he found it a lot easier to be able to come in for lunch, shut the new fangled contraption off and forget about it until after lunch. No unhitching, no watering, no feeding. Martin was sold on tractors for the most part.

Work horses received two ears of corn and approximately two quarts of oats per day, as well as all the timothy hay they could eat. They were watered two or three times per day, depending on the time of year and working schedule.

More than "horsepower" has changed during the several scores of years since the Martin-Weaver farm was founded in 1870.

The methods of farming, production, and prices have certainly changed. One of the more obvious - when it comes to pulling out old statististics and documents is the size of the deed. Weaver, who has owned this parcel of prime Lancaster County since 1966, has an old deed among his possessions which is every bit as big as an ordinary road map. Exceptionally straight lines of beautiful penmanship run across the large paper like long rows of corn in a level field. Nobody writes like that anymore.

Talk about prices and Martin will bring one incident from out of his memory which still tickles him today. He had wanted to buy a car in the Spring of 1918 but all of his hopes were dashed when the main cash crop at that time - tobacco - was hit by an early frost. Disappointed and depressed, he told his wife they'd have to postpone the much wanted purchase. But there was a surprise in store for him.

When the tobacco buyers came around, they offered him 12 to 13 cents per pound, which is not at all bad compared to the 58 cents per pound being paid nowadays. He made enough money on the crop to buy himself a car six months early. It was a four-year old Ford, and the price was $250.

Tobacco was the main cash crop on this farm until about 18 years ago when Martin's son-in-law, Weaver, decided to expand the dairy business. Prior to that year the family kept 12 dairy cows and 12 steers, and most of the work was done by hand. Weaver expanded and brought in a few more innovations.

Today the 78 acre farm is being managed by Weaver's son-in-law, John S. Zimmerman. He and his wife, the former Cheryl Weaver, keep 70 Holsteins and raise mostly corn and hay. Recently the young dairyman added a few acres of wheat to his cropping program.

The pattern of father to son-in-law has been in progress for most of the 100-some years that the family has owned the property near here. David Martin was the first to acquire it in 1870. He sold it to Martin, his son-in-law, who, by coincidence, shared not only the same last name but also had a father whose first name was David. In 1913 the farm was sold to Benjamin Franklin Martin, who in turn sold it to Clayton, and then on to Weaver.

The Martins owned two adjacent properties here some years ago, those being the present farm and a smaller one which went with an old mill that still stands just a stone's throw from the homestead. The second property was sold by David Martin to his son, Aaron.

Built in 1825, the massive old barn here boasts stone walls two feet thick and heavy hand-hewn timbers. It is said that one man hewed all the heavy timbers himself during one winter. The gable ends of the barn are of stone all the way to the peak. According to Martin, the stones used are not native to the area, as they are especially soft and referred to as "honeycomb" stones. They're supposedly held together by sand lime.

The Martin homestead lies serenely in northeastern Lancaster County in a setting which is possibly just as peaceful as it was 100 years ago. But it's deceiving. Aside from the productivity which is evident and the bustling activity which is found on all operating farms, there's the usually unseen phenomenon of real estate pressures.

An old deed reveals that this same property, along with the smaller adjoining farm and mill - a total of 113 acres - sold for $7000 during the mid 19th Century.

Now land is selling for as much as $5000 per acre in this area.

Wrapped in an empty beet pulp bag to keep hundreds of spiders and their webs off my clothing, and with my head just inches from the aluminum canopy on top of the silo chute, I was in a rather tight and warm situation. A silo's chute is cramped — being less than two foot square. Air doesn't move much, and at the top it makes beads of sweat form without hardly lifting a finger

Down below and inside the silo was our silage distributor which weighed about 100 pounds My next chore was to pull the awkward metal contraption up to me — a distance of 55 feet

The rope I had carried with me dangled down through the chute. I pulled it up and dropped it down into the silo

"Are you ready down there?" I asked our hired man. The acoustics of an empty silo gave my voice a new tone. All prepared and hitched up, I tugged on the rope. My legs were braced against the hinge-steps and my abdomen strained against the top of the silo wall. I always considered the 55-foot pull a challenge. It wasn't really bad and there were plenty of opportunities to rest a moment. All I had to do was secure the rope.

Once pulled to the top, an equally demanding task followed The distributor, which formed a vertical triangle with the wall of the silo, had to be positioned just right Maneuvering the gangly contraption was sometimes more difficult than pulling it straight up The goal was to have the actual distributing mechanism rest as nearly level as possible on its supports Only then would it slide and rotate smoothly.

When the silo was just about full, we'd take the distributor out through an opening in the roof so that we could keep on filling without covering up the equipment. And then the following year the ordeal would start all over again — with a big paper sack enveloping me and spiders being disturbed

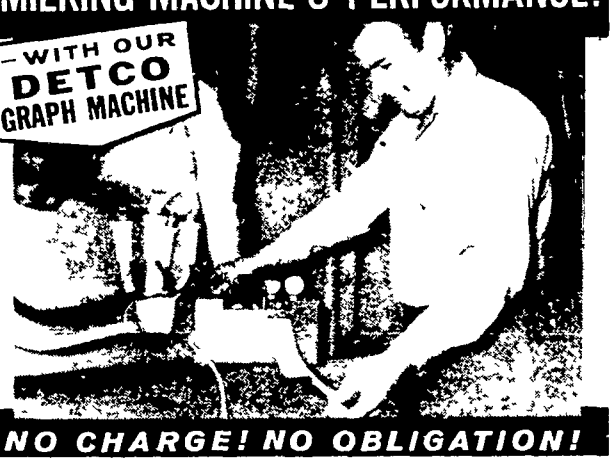
Dairymen! LET US CHECK YOUR MILKING MACHINE'S PERFORMANCE!



NO CHARGE! NO OBLIGATION!

If you have a problem of teat and udder erosion in your herd — chances are you are milking with unstable vacuum And, as more and more animal health authorities have been agreeing that many teat and udder injuries — which have contributed to the spread of mastitis — have been caused by unstable milking vacuum you should have your milking machine's performance checked

We'll be happy to do this for you with our DETCO Graph Machine It's a remarkable, new invention that records vacuum readings at the milker units attached to the teats, recording the milking vacuum and pulsating vacuum simultaneously And tells you in easy to-understand graph form, as shown in the photo above, if you are milking with unstable vacuum at the teat end

Increasing the size of your vacuum pump and the size of your air and milk lines are good recommendations But if you still don't have stable vacuum at the teat ends — investigate our ZERO CONCORD Twin Vacuum Pipeline Milking System It's a combination of a revolutionary pipeline milking machine and the ZERO Completely Automated Vacuum Bulk Milk Cooler It was designed especially to milk with stable vacuum at the teat ends to prevent teat and udder injuries caused by milking with unstable vacuum And has many other advantages

MUELLER FRE-HEATER™

EXPLANATION OF THE REVOLUTIONARY NEW MUELLER "FRE-HEATER™" FOR THE DAIRY FARM

Bulk milk coolers on modern dairy farms remove heat from the milk promptly after it is produced To accomplish this requires refrigeration machines and they are generally of the air-cooled type Air-cooled condensing units literally "throw away" this valuable heat

On these same farms, large amounts of hot water are needed for "prepping" the cows, washing the milk cooler, the pipeline milker, other equipment, and the milking parlor itself It is also advantageous to heat the cows' drinking water in winter

The Mueller Fre-Heater conserves energy and provides "free" hot water by capturing the heat now wasted!

HERE'S HOW IT WORKS:

Rather than using noisy, dust-creating fans with fragile, dirt collecting air-cooled condensers, the refrigerant is routed to a specially designed condenser/heat exchanger and its heat is transferred to the water

A thermostatically controlled valve delivers 145° F water to the storage tank

In addition to the thermostatic valve, a mixing valve is provided to permit "prepping" temperature water

Thus, the Fre-Heater delivers two temperatures of water — prepping and washing

Tests indicate the Fre-Heater consumes 10% less power than an air-cooled system . . . and you get Free Hot Water!

ELIMINATES REFRIGERATION SERVICE PROBLEMS!

The most common causes of slow cooling in bulk milk cooling systems are related to the air-cooled condenser

Three things which frequently reduce the efficiency are
1. Poor air circulation and recirculation
2 Fan motor failures
3 Dirty or clogged condenser fins

Air-cooled condensing units are generally installed out of doors in order to assure adequate air supply to the condenser. This exposes the compressor to extreme ambient temperatures Starting problems and compressor failures have resulted and air-cooled condenser units are always noisy.

The Fre-Heater eliminates these problems because
- There is no air-cooled condenser
- The Fre-Heater is installed indoors
- There are no fans to generate noise.
- The head pressure is very stable — assuring longer compressor life.
- There are no cold weather starting problems, plus

. . . the Fre-Heater conserves energy and produces Free Hot Water!

Save Energy and get FREE HOT WATER...

Meat trade loophole may close

DENVER, Colo. - The American National Cattlemen's Association (ANCA) has reacted favorably to the Secretary of Agriculture's proposed regulation, under the Meat Import Act of 1964, that can have the effect of preventing circumvention of the Meat Import Law in Foreign Trade Zones.

The proposed regulation, published in the Federal Register on August 17, is subject to a 30-day period of public comment. "We fully expect the long-awaited regulation to be adopted following the comment period," said Wray Finney, president of ANCA. "Finally the circumvention of the Meat Import Act that has been going on in Mayaguez, Puerto Rico, can now be stopped. This action should also prevent the spread of similar activity in other Foreign Trade Zones. We commend the USDA for finally responding to our requests and implementing the Meat Import Act as it should be."

With concern over depressed domestic livestock prices, cattlemen, represented by ANCA and the National Livestock Feeders Association, have been calling for a halt to practices that circumvent the intent of the Meat Import Act by allowing fresh, chilled or frozen cattle meat to come into the U.S. under a different tariff schedule. The loophole can be accomplished in Foreign Trade Zones by allowing foreign beef to be diced, chopped or shredded and repackaged in 60-pound bags before entering the U. S.

According to USDA, the meat processing operation in Mayaguez, P. R., has allowed Australia and New Zealand to ship, through July 31, over 21 million pounds of meat into the U. S. without being subject to import quotas. Reports from trade sources indicate another 10 million pounds is in the processing stages at Mayaguez, and that 26 million pounds of meat has been contracted for delivery at Mayaguez through the end of September.

"Our concern all along was that this meat coming into the U. S. through Mayaguez should be subject to the Meat Import Act and thus counted under the restraint agreements," added Finney.

He pointed out that this was a very timely action, since the upcoming fourth quarter is traditionally the period of heaviest non-fed slaughter, which generally goes into manufacturing-type beef. Most of the foreign beef also goes into the Manufacturing of "hamburger" mix. So, a reduction in the amount of foreign beef can only be viewed as a positive influence on domestic cattle marketing problems.

Finney was quick to add that the cattlemen are not against reciprocal trade policies. "We have the fairest import law in the world," he said. "The amount of beef imported annually under the law generally amounts to six or seven per cent of U. S. production. During the past 10 years, allowable imports have increased from 995 million pounds to 1,233 million pounds. We welcome reciprocal trade with other countries; in fact, we wish other countries had such a fair law."

News for hunters

Hunting season opened, rules issued

HARRISBURG - Pennsylvania's 1976-77 hunting seasons opened Wednesday, with doves, gallinules and two species of rails as the lead-off migratory game birds for hunters.

The daily limit for doves this year will again be 12, with a maximum possession limit of 24 after the first day of the season. There is a daily limit of 15 on gallinules, with not more than 30 in possession after the first day of the season.

On sora and Virginia rails, both the daily bag and possession limits at any time are 25, singly or in the aggregate of the two species.

There will be no open season on king and clapper rails this year in Pennsylvania. Hunting ends at sunset daily.

Hunters are reminded that the 1976-77 hunting license must be used after September 1. A federal migratory bird hunting stamp (duck stamp) is not required to hunt doves, rails and gallinules.

Hunters are urged by the Game Commission to be better conservationists by taking additional steps to pick up game which has been shot. Federal regulations provide that "No person shall kill or cripple any migratory game bird ... without making a reasonable effort to retrieve the bird and include it in his daily bag limit." Use of a retrieving dog is recommended. Another recommendation: Don't litter.

The last day of the season on doves, rails and gallinules this year in Pennsylvania will be Tuesday, November 9.

Pennsylvania hunting and trapping licenses for 1976-77 seasons are on sale throughout the Commonwealth.

The new licenses will be valid through August 31, 1977.

Licenses are availalbe from county treasurers and local issuing agents. They are also availalbe by mail only from the Pennsylvania Game Commission, License Section, P. O. Box 1567, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania 17120.

The cost of a resident license for youngsters 12 through 16 years of age is $5.25; a resident adult license for hunters 17 through 64 years of age costs $8.25; adult licenses for resident senior citizens 65 years of age and older costs $5.25 each; the cost of a non-resident license, regardless of age, is $40.35; and an archery license costs $2.20.

The 1976-77 Pennsylvania Hunting and Trapping Digest is now availalbe and is being issued with each hunting license.

The 56-page booklet contains information on 1976-77 seasons and bag limits, maps and dates for special hunting areas, a general summary of hunting laws and regulations, and numerous other items of interest to sportsmen.

Each hunter should be sure to obtain a Digest when he purchases his license.

The hunting season for regulated shooting grounds in Pennsylvania began one-half hour before sunrise on Wednesday, September 1.

Regulated shooting grounds are operated under permits issued by the Pennsylvania Game Commission and are either private or commercial in nature. The hunting season ends next March 31 for private shooting grounds, and will end next April 30 on commercial grounds.

Propagated or released birds taken on a regulated shooting grounds must be tagged before removal from the grounds.

Sportsmen are reminded that Sunday hunting is not permitted on regulated shooting grounds.

All persons hunting on regulated shooting grounds are required to possess a current, valid hunting license.. A three-day non-resident license is availalbe for hunting on regulated shooting grounds only. Holders of this type of license may take only liberated game.

York Fair packed with entertainment and events

YORK - Once again, it's time for the York Interstate Fair. The whole thing will come off the week of September 10 - 18, and this year's Fair committee promises that the event will be bigger and better than ever.

The Fair will take on a special Bicentennial flavor with many exhibitions and contests being held on a revolutionary theme.

In the home and dairy products, a special "Happy Birthday America" cake decorating competition will be held. Prizes from $3 to $5 will be awarded. Entries may be made at Horticultural Hall on September 7, 8, and 9.

The needlecraft department of the Fair will be sponsoring contests of handmade Bicentennial costumes, both ladies' and men's, with prizes of $5 and $4 for each.

Bicentennial quilts and handmade flags will also be judged. The quilt competition is open to adult groups, youth groups, and individuals. Entered flags must have a Bicentennial theme. Entries for these categories will still be received at Exhibition Building No. 1 today and Tuesday.

A Bicentennial exhibition and contest will be sponsored by the fine arts department. In one class, paintings, decoupage, and photography will be judged on their relevance to the Bicentennial era. Also, dolls, handwoven articles, jewelry, ceramics, candles, woodwork, and decorated metal and wood will be found in a special Bicentennial category.

In the antiques and miscellaneous category, special Bicentennial awards will be presented to the best exhibit representing the Colonial York Era and for items of interest from past York Fairs. Entries for the fine arts and antiques departments will also be received at Exhibition Building No. 1 today and Tuesday.

Entertainment

There is also a big line-up on the entertainment schedule. Ray Stevens and Chuck Wollery have been engaged to appear on Wednesday, September 15 at 6 and 9 p.m. They complete the York Fair's entertainment line-up for 1976, sharing the grandstand stage with Mac Davis and Tanya Tucker, September 10; Natalie Cole and Paul Revere and the Raiders, September 11; Tennessee Ernie Ford and Life, September 13; Frankie Valli and the Four Seasons, September 14; Red Skelton and Lynn Anderson, September 16; Keith Carradine, England Dan and John Ford Coley, September 17; and John Davidson and Kip Addotta, September 18.

The York Interstate Fair will feature livestock exhibits, horticultural exhibits, big-name entertainment, and the usual rides and midway. The big week is September 10 - 18.

Sunday

Sunday should prove to be a great day for Fair and parade lovers. Beginning at 10:30 a.m., a worship service featuring the Rev. Dr. Alton M. Motter will start the day. The Rev. Motter, who resides in Williamsport, is an experienced pastor, ecumenical administrator, church editor, teacher, and world ecumenical observer.

The sermon is entitled, "America's Two Religions."

Following the worship service, a Bicentennial parade will begin in downtown York and end at the Fairgrounds. The time for this event is 1:30 p.m.

The next event of the day is a mass bands concert, and at 6.30 p.m., a championship drum and bugle corps contest will be held.

The contest entrants in the senior drum and bugle category will be The York White Roses, The Yankee Rebels from Baltimore, The Hanover Lancers and The Reading Buccaneers.

Junior Corps entering are The Crossman from West

Apple production declines

HARRISBURG - Pennsylvania's commercial apple production is forecast at 370 million pounds based on August 1 conditions, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service.

The prospective crop is 26 per cent below 1975's utilized production of 503.5 million pounds. An additional 46.5 million pounds of the 1975 crop was not utilized for economical reasons. Production of all varieties in the Commonwealth is expected to be below year ending totals due to poor pollination conditions and damaging frosts.

Apple prospects by varieties, indicate that Golden Delicious will be Pennsylvania's leading producer for the first time since records began in 1942.

The indicated leading varieties are: Golden Delicious; 23 per cent; York Imperial, 20 per cent; Rome Beauty, 16 per cent; Stayman, 14 per cent; Red Delicious, 11 per cent; Jonathan, four per cent; McIntosh, four per cent; Cortland, one per cent and other varieties seven per cent.

The August 1 forecast of the nation's commercial apple crop is 6.2 billion pounds, 13 per cent less than the record 7.1 billion pounds utilized last year and five per cent below the 1974 crop. Virtually all major producing areas expect some decline from a year ago. The Eastern and Central States will be off by 19 and 28 per cent, respectively, while the West expects only a one per cent reduction.

Red Delicious continues a long history as the leading apple variety, accounting for 38 per cent of the U.S. total. Other leading varieties and their per cent of expected 1976 total production are: Golden Delicious, 16 per cent; Rome Beauty, eight per cent; McIntosh, eight per cent; Jonathan, five per cent; and Stayman, three per cent.

Area residents have active roles in FARMFEST '76 celebration.

By JOANNE SPAHR

LANCASTER - Hailed as the world's greatest salute to agriculture and as a bicentennial tribute to the American farmer, FARMFEST '76 to be held in Lake Crystal, Minn., is shaping up to be quite an event.

The week-long celebration running from September 13 - 19 will host more than 750 exhibitors on a record breaking 121 acre FARMFEST commercial display area.

Nearly 1000 acres of test plots will be exhibited and harvested in machinery demonstration fields. Crops raised all over the country, ranging from tobacco to pineapples, will be growing on Constitution Mall.

Also featured will be the "world series of agricultural competitions," including the 20th World Championship Tractor Pull, the National Horse Plowing contest, World Championship Horse Pulling contest, and a Bicentennial Invitational Horseshoe Pitching contest.

Another big drawing card is the seven days of top name entertainment with free daily stage shows in the huge natural amphitheater.

It all sounds exciting, and yet it seems so far removed from quaint Lancaster County. However, there are more ties between Lancaster and Lake Crystal than one might expect.

Several area people either have been, or are going to be, actively involved with the festivities in Minnesota.

One of these individuals is Lester Houck, Kinzers R1, who is secretary of the National Tractor Pulling Association and also secretary of the Pennsylvania association.

For quite some time, Houck has been flying back and forth between his home and the FARMFEST site, setting up for the four-day events of the 20th World Champion Tractor Pulls.

Houck figures that the total time he's actually spent in Minnesota comes to around two weeks, but that's a lot of little jaunts for this businessman.

Marlene Hershey and the Hersheyettes from Gap will be part of the featured entertainment at FARMFEST '76. They have been preparing for a year now, adding ten new songs to their show. Marlene made the red, white, and blue outfits the mother - daughter group will be wearing.

"This is the largest tractor pull ever held," states Houck. "We've already got 220 entries and we're anticipating 400."

Houck went on to say that there will be 50 to 70 competitors in a class compared to 30 or 40 in other national competitions, and that two tracks will be set up for the four-day battle over the $40,000 purse. This cash award, is the largest outdoor purse ever offered in the country.

What are the responsibilities of the person setting up this large event?

"Mainly, I take care of anything that has to do with the pull," explains Houck. "Trying to figure out how to handle 400 tractors and 20 to 30 thousand spectators keeps me busy," he continues.

A few of the other responsibilities he has are taking care of entries and maintenance of the track.

But he doesn't limit his concerns chiefly to the tractor pull.

"I'm really pushing the whole FARMFEST," he says, as he hands out promotional material.

Area residents

Houck is hoping for a big turnout and states with conviction, "We're shooting for a million people."

Barn Raising

Houck was also responsible for recruiting other area people to help with FARMFEST.

Lester Houck, Kinzers R1, is an ardent promoter of FARMFEST '76. Although his responsibilities in the Bicentennial event are chiefly concerned with the 20th World Championship Tractor Pull, he nevertheless is backing the whole celebration. Here, he holds a bill telling of the upcoming events.

Lester Slaymaker of Gap was one person he contacted. Tentatively, Slaymaker plans to go to Minnesota the week of the FARMFEST and "frame" or "peg" a barn. This is an old craft which Slaymaker learned from his father who he describes as an "old timer."

"My father never used a blueprint when he framed a barn, and neither will I," says the carpenter with pride.

Pegging a barn consists of fastening the heavy frame timbers together with wooden pegs instead of spikes. And, each piece of lumber is fitted or mortised, into the other.

"Everything will be done by hand," states Slaymaker, "there won't be any machinery involved."

"That means somebody's going to be busy hand chiseling 225 wooden pegs," he adds with a grin.

The barn Slaymaker plans to build will be 20 x 30 feet and will be constructed during the week of the FARMFEST as a progressive show.

"Anybody who is there will be able to watch a barn raised from start to finish," explains the carpenter.

The reason a Lancaster County craftsman was chosen to do the pegging is that Midwesterners supposedly do no build barns in this fashion.

Slaymaker will also be taking another area resident and relative, Warren Slaymaker, along with him to help in construction of the building.

Entertainment

Lancaster County will also have a resident rubbing elbows with some of the greats in today's music such as Glen Campbell, Roy Clark, Helen Reddy, Jim Nabors, Bobby Vinton, and John Davidson.

That resident is Mrs. I. Eby (Marlene) Hershey. Along with her two daughters, Sherri, 12, and Brenda, 14, she has been performing gospel music for about nine years now.

The family group which goes by the name of "Marlene Hershey and the Hersheyettes," is well known in the area for their 15 minute television show, broadcast at 10:15 - 10:30 a.m. on alternating Sundays by WGAL TV, a local television station. The show is entitled "Hearthside Hymns" and features the mother-daughter group singing both original and well-known religious works.

"My music is really my ministry," explains Marlene. "Unless you go completely national, it almost has to be a sideline, and not a profession."

Fortunately for the group, the family's sideline came to the attention of Ed Hart, manager of the Bicentennial agriculture celebration, and he liked it.

"We feel very honored to be going to FARMFEST," Marlene admits, "It will be a completely new experience for us, since we will be working with top stars."

Marlene and the Hersheyettes will be performing two shows - one on Tuesday and one on Friday during the FARMFEST week, and Marlene alone, will also be the featured organist for various events such as the tractor pull.

"It sounds to me like we're going to have an atmosphere similar to the Philadelphia ball games with the music I'll be playing," smiles the gracious and talented lady.

As for their two shows, Marlene says that they have been busy for over a year now, preparing a set which is 45 minutes in length and which has about 10 new songs.

The music of the Hersheyettes is classed as gospel, and yet it isn't a typical gospel.

"We believe gospel music should be cheerful," explains the song writer, "and that it should portray your happiness."

As a result, their music has a "beat" built into it.

The group has produced eight albums in nine years, and four of them have gotten national distribution. They have also sung in four other states and at the Grand Ol' Opry in Nashville, Tenn.

"And, now we're concentrating and really working hard for Minnesota," says Marlene sincerely.

While the group is performing and Marlene is playing for the various festivities, her husband will be helping out with the

ATTENTION: Cattlemen

If you're relying more on grain silage

Feed Bovotone 12-D

If you're like most cattlemen, you'll be counting on silage this year to keep feed costs down. But keep in mind, grain and silage rations are generally low in major minerals and trace minerals making proper supplementation a must.

That's why it's more important than ever to feed Bovotone 12-D from Vigortone. Bovotone 12-D makes up for nutritional deficiencies present when high levels of silage are fed, promotes better feed conversion and maintains maximum feed intake. During periods of stress, feed Bovotone 12-D + A and D.

If you're relying more on silage this year, feed Bovotone 12-D. It's safe, economical and easy to use.

Vigortone pre-mix meter — for automated feed handling systems

Vigortone has a new metering device that is reliable, accurate and simple to install. Just set the timer and calibrate the meter for the desired amount of pre-mix per minute. Automatically, your pre-mix is metered into your grain, silage or haylage at the required levels.

Area people place in state hay show

ROCK SPRINGS - Several area people did exceptionally well in the State Hay Show held last week at Ag Progress Days, here.

In the show, Jay McCarrell, of Eighty Four, exhibited the grand champion sample, a heat-dried later cutting alfalfa. Reserve champion was shown by Milton Hershey School Farms, of Hershey, a heat-dried sample of clover.

Jay McCarrell entries also won prizes in alfalfa, first cutting; alfalfa-grass mixed; clover; birdsfoot trefoil; grass, second cutting; and mixed hay categories, all heat-dired samples.

In field-dried classes, J. E. Lanius and Son, of York, R3, was first in grass, second cutting; and E. Wayne Beshore, of New Cumberland, R1, was second. Robert E. Waite, of Beavertown, R1, was first in mixed hay, mostly legumes; and A. L. Orner and Sons, of Rockton, placed second.

First place in the mixed hay, mostly grass class was LeRoy F. Rowles, of Olanta, R1. Second place went to Elwood Fox and Son, of Bangor, R2.

In alfalfa, first cutting class went to Richard Maurer, of Newport, R1. Second place sample was exhibited by Ira Altemose, of Kunkletown. Ronald Hoopengardener, of Hancock, Md., R1, was first in alfalfa later cuttings; and second was Kenneth Moury, of Roaring Spring, R1.

Steven Marshall, of Jersey Shore, R1, placed first in the alfalfa-grass first cutting class; and Paul Bollinger, of Myerstown, R2, was second. First place in the alfalfa-grass mixed class was John Sankley, of Clearfield, R2; and Glenn Redsout, of Mercer R4, was second.

J. E. Lanius, of York, R3, was first in clover classes; and Clifford Grube, of Womelsdorf, R1, placed second. Paul Bollinger, of Myerstown, R2, was first in clover-timothy classes; and Daniel Schlegel, of Oley, R1, placed second.

LeRoydale Farms, of Canton, was first in birdsfoot trefoil classes. James Palm, of Loysville, was first in grass later cutting; and Paul Bollinger was second.

In heat-dried competition, Thomas Zartman, of Ephrata, R1, was first in alfalfa, first cutting; and Willow Brook Farms, of Catasauqua, was second in alfalfa later cuttings.

Ag Progress Days was partially funded by a grant from the Bicentennial Commission of Pennsylvania.

Lester Slaymaker of Gap stands with his carpenter's tools which he will be utilizing when he "frames" or "pegs" a barn at FARMFEST '76. Everything which will be done on the barn will be hand carpentered with no mechanization used at all.

tractor pulls. He has been a mechanic at Hoobers International Harvester, Gap, for 12 years, and now is involved with the pulls.

"I really have to give my husband credit for getting us out there," says Marlene. "He got Ed Hart interested in our music and as a result we are going."

Regardless of how they got there, the mere fact that the group will be performing at FARMFEST with the top stars in today's music is a real piece of good luck for them all.

Quarantine reduced

NEW YORK - Restrictions on swine movements, imposed on New Jersey Aug. 2 and reduced to a nine-county area Aug. 13, have been further reduced to cover a four-county area in the southern part of the state, U.S. Department of Agriculture announced.

Federal and state quarantines still cover Atlantic, Cape May, Cumberland, and Gloucester counties. Swine from these counties may only be shipped direct to slaughter after inspection and issuance of a special permit by authorized federal or state officials. Shipments of feeder pigs will be allowed into the quarantine areas; however, no movement of swine will be allowed between farms.

Officials of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) explained that all herds found to be infected with or exposed to hog cholera to date have been in the southern counties of the state. Hog cholera was confirmed August 1 on a farm in Cape May county, in the extreme southern tip of the state.

Much is still lacking in weather forecasting

WEATHER REPORT

By DIETER KRIEG

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fourth article in a continuing series of stories on one of the most awesome forces on Earth - the weather.

Weather forecasting has come a long ways during the past 15 years. On April 1, 1960, for example, Tiros I, the first meteorological satellite to be equipped with a television camera system, began circling the globe to give man an idea of what weather patterns looked like from high above the ground. The revolutionary satellite only stayed operational for 78 days, but in that short period of time it transmitted some 23,000 cloud photographs, more than half of which were usable. "Satellite meteorology" was born and forecasting of the weather became remarkably more accurate.

More important, such advanced technologies and efforts have allowed the Weather Service to come up with a storm warning systems which annually saves money amounting to many times the total cost of the government's weather program. But scientists aren't resting on their laurels, and they readily admit that there is still much to do before a complete weather watching system is established. Furthermore, they want to do something about changing the weather - or at least effectively reduce the impact of storms and drought.

Weather watching is a world-wide effort in which all nations and most aircraft and ocean-going ships take part. One might think that information from all of these sources, in addition to satellites, should be adequate, but meteorologists are the first to proclaim that it isn't.

The simple reasoning behind this assessment is that the movements of the atmosphere are overwhelmingly huge, complex, and fast. Scientific efforts are dwarfed in comparison.

In recent years the Global Atmospheric Research Program (GARP) and a related project, World Weather Watch, have been seeking means to develop an adequate worldwide observation and forecasting system. The United States and more than 100 other nations which make up the World Meteorological Organization are committed to "doing something about the weather."

It's success is not guaranteed, by any means, and experts believe that three main criteria need to be worked out first:

1. Greater efficiency must be had from computers - by some estimates these new computers must have 100 times the capacity of today's finest machines.

2. A model of our planet's weather system is needed. According to weather scientist and astronomer, Walter Orr Roberts, a "fully realistic theory must be developed."

He says that the model must include all the physical forces affecting the atmosphere. It must describe in numbers and equations the oceans, landmasses, and mountains, the changes in temperature, reflectivity, and moisture; the distribution of the nuclei around which moisture condenses or freezes; the cloud patterns; the wind velocities; the temperature, pressure, humidity, and density of the atmosphere at thousands of points and at many levels. "In some models it takes half a million pieces of data just to describe the atmosphere at a single instant," Roberts says.

He further suggests that such a model of global weather must be keyed to the workings of a giant computer so that it can calculate any weather changes. To some extent, such machines are already in use at the Weather Service.

3. A more complete network of weather stations is needed. In spite of everything that has already been done - on the surface and from outer space - meteorologists claim that no more than 20 per cent of the planet is being adequately studied. Among the areas which are less familiar to scientists are the stratosphere and the oceans, both of which have profound effects on global weather patterns.

To be continued next week.

Poultry production up

HARRISBURG - Poultry production in the Commonwealth is continuing above 1975 levels, according to the Crop Reporting Service. Placements of broiler chicks during the week ending August 21 were 1,494,000.

The placements were 14 per cent above the corresponding week a year ago, but six per cent below the previous week. Average placements during the past 10 weeks were 16 per cent above a year earlier.

Placements in the 21 key poultry producing states were 62,781,000. This figure is 10 per cent above the same week in 1975 but two per cent below the previous week.

Average placements during the past 10 weeks in the 21 key states were 12 per cent above a year ago.

In the past decade Boston, like many other large American cities, has received an influx of Puerto Ricans and other Spanish-speaking people. By 1970 they numbered some 40,000 and had begun to outgrow the small storefront organizations and social clubs that had been set up to serve their needs.

airy Show held at Kutztown

Frankenfeld, Lehigh County; Tom Kirk, Solanco; Gody Vorhees and David Berwine, Lehigh County; Bruce Swartley, Upper Bucks; Harold Monk, Lehigh County; Lester Barton, Lehigh County; Tom Kirk, Solanco.

Champions and County Teams

Tom Kirk swept the senior side of the show with his entries, and led his junior champion to the reserve grand champion spot. Reserve junior honors went to Harold Monk. Lehigh County had the first place group of four.

JERSEYS
Champions and County Teams

Randy Behney, Northern Lebanon FFA, had the grand champion; David Gerhart from the Cloister FFA Chapter showed the reserve grand champion. It was an unusual conclusion to a show, as the junior champion outpointed the senior champion (Gerhart) for the highest honors of all. There was no reserve senior champion. Reserve junior laurels went to Gerhart also. The county team hailed from Lancaster.

MILKING SHORTHORNS

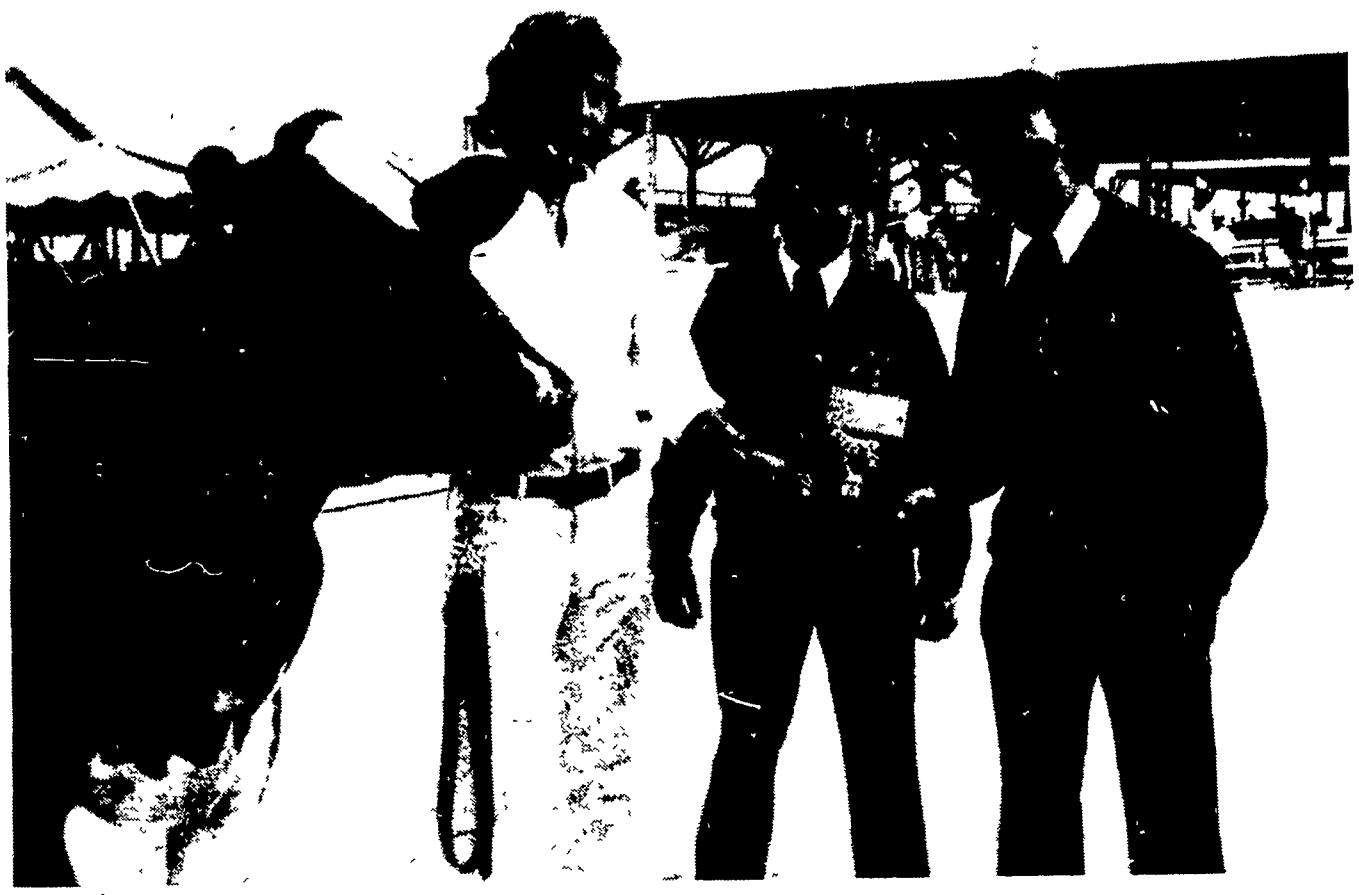
Nedra Yoder, Berks County's dairy princess for 1976, and a member of the Hamburg FFA Chapter, exhibited a junior calf which went on to be the grand champion.

JUDGES

Judges for this year's show were Lloyd Ebersole, director of Sire-Power, type judge for Holsteins; Robert Gregory, Pennfield Corporation, type judge for colored breeds; Raymond Seidel, showing judge; Shepherd Wolf, fitting judge.

TROPHIES AND AWARDS

Trophies and awards were provided by: Atlantic Breeders and the various breed organizations which were represented at the show. Atlantic also furnished the sound equipment and hats.



Paul Horning, the Holstein breeder champion of the FFA District Dairy Show at Kutztown, receives a plaque and congratulations from FFA officers — Earl Geib, center, Eastern Regional vice president, and Roger Imes, state treasurer.

The water content of the body cannot change very much without harmful effects. Therefore, it is very important that animals have a constant supply of clean, fresh water available daily. The water content of an animal's body (on a fat-free basis) is relatively constant at 68 to 72 percent.

HEART DISEASE DATA CRITICIZED

Risk factors and coronary heart disease—facts or fancy? is the title of a recently published scientific paper in the American Heart Journal It is not the first criticism of the so called risk factors of heart disease to appear But it may be the most devastating

Why? Because in no uncertain terms the author—Dr Lars Werko of Sweden—questions the idea that diet should be modified for fear of heart disease

IN HIS 12 page paper with 70 scientific references Dr Werko says the data from even the most often quoted studies simply can not be validly interpreted to suggest that lowering blood cholesterol by dietary means will prevent heart disease

And he is explicitly critical of scientists and organizations who perpetuate the idea that there are sound data for such recommendations especially for the general public

One of Dr Werko s main conclusions is that the so called risk factors of heart disease are based on poorly constructed epidemiological data He says for example the authors of population studies seldom record that the populations studied are small or that comparisons are made using data of doubtful validity such as official mortality statistics or consumption figures for a whole nation

He adds that the population studies also are representative only of selected groups Such data he says should not be used for any general recommendations for the general population

SMOKING and high blood pressure Dr Werko says are well documented as heart disease risk factors

Critical of programs aimed at changing dietary habits Dr Werko says Regardless of the lack of proof that it is the American diet that causes an elevation of serum cholesterol in the population samples studied the discussion focuses on the necessity of changing the diet of the general population It seems therefore rather remarkable when looking at the results regarding deaths—that there is not any straight-line relation between the level of serum cholesterol and the incidence of these deaths

IT SEEMS, then rather remarkable that the involved authors—and official bodies—continue to stress high serum cholesterol and diet as the risk factor that has to be controlled through general and individual intervention

Dr Werko is a member of the Department of Medicine at the University of Goteborg Sweden and an internationally known cardiovascular disease authority

World Dairy Expo outlined

MADISON, Wis. - The tenth World Dairy Exposition will begin September 29, here, at the Exposition Center, with at least one dairyman from this area entered in the competition. Kennard Henley of Cochranville has made plans to compete in the Central National Ayrshire Show. Ayrshires will be judged Wednesday, September 29. The Expo extends from September 29 through October 3. Visitors may see Guernsey judging on September 29-30, Brown Swiss, September 29 & October 1; and Holstein, October 1-2. Jersey and Milking Shorthorn associations will assemble exhibits of top-quality cattle of their respective breeds.

A full schedule of dairy events will be highlighted by a repeat of Expo's grand door prize program. To be given away are five liquid nitrogen refrigerators from American Breeders Service on September 29, and on succeeding days, a Hawaiian vacation for two from World Dairy Expo Tours, five dairy heifers (choice of breed) from Tri-State Breeders Cooperative; calf nursery from Ag Best Corporation, and on October 3, a 1977 pick up truck from Renk Seed Company and Chevrolet Truck Division.

An international trade show for dairy farmers, World Dairy Expo attracts dairymen worldwide. A myriad of nationalities will be in evidence on October 1 when a number of multilingual events have been planned. Foreign buyers are notably interested in the World Premiere Holstein Sale held that evening.

Programming for women, banquets, polka parties and square dancing are on the schedule as World Dairy Expo celebrates its tenth anniversary. The comparison shopping dairy farmer will also find the huge Coliseum and surrounding grounds packed with displays of equipment and products he can use in his operation.

COLONIAL HOUSEWARES

Housewares as we know them - pots, pans, flatware and convenience tools - were unknown to our ancestors. Early colonists used tin, iron and wooden kitchen utensils. Hand-carved wooden spoons were the most common. Pewter and silver were generally found only in the homes of the rich.

Extension specialists Penn State University say an iron cooking pot was a valued possession of many early families. But early colonial ironware was a poor quality and it was especially difficult to keep it rust-free. Iron kettles were preseasoned before use. This involved washing them in soap and water, quickly drying them, then coating the pots with beeswax to penetrate the surface pores. Sealing these pores helped prevent rusting and kept food from sticking. The ironware had to be kept dry and periodically reseasoned.

Tinware was lighter than iron and more versatile. It was hand-pounded into a variety of shapes which peddlers strapped to their backs and sold as they journeyed from town to town.

Lactation inhibitors found

UNIVERSITY PARK - When milk production drops sharply soon after a dairy herd is moved to a new pasture, it may be that the lush and leafy surroundings aren't as innocent as they look. Dairy scientists at Penn State University have found two plant substances, for example, with the ability to "turn off" milk-producing cells in goats.

After being injected with the compounds, goats gave from one-third to two-thirds less milk than normal during a 36 hour period, according to Dr. Stuart Patton and associates at Penn State. Within 72 to 96 hours the goats resumed their normal milk yield.

The naturally-occurring plant substances are known as colchicine and vincristine. Patton believes that such milk-inhibiting compounds may be common.

Patton said both compounds are already known to suppress secretion of lipoproteins in the liver and insulin in the pancreas.

"The most important thing about this work is that it adds a new dimension to the understanding of the lactating cell," he stated. "If colchicine and vincristine suppress milk secretion in the same way that they suppress other secretory products, it may mean that the lactating cell transports its secretions similarly to mechanisms involved with the liver and pancreas."

The experiments seem to indicate that there is a mechanism, heretofore unknown, that regulates the rate of milk secretion from the lactating cell.

If that mechanism were known, it would be a major step forward in increasing milk production, one of the main concerns in agriculture, he affirmed.

Fifty years ago there was an average of more than 10 acres of cropland per person in the United States. Thirty years ago it had declined to 8 acres, 15 years ago to 6½ acres, and now to 5 acres.

What's New

PLANT ROOT PROTECTION RINGS

A new line of plant root protection rings has been announced by BQP Industries. Called Accelagro tm rings, they are made from tough, long-wearing, butyrate plastic and can be used both by the home handyman and the professional gardener.

Designed to fit around the stalks of plants or trunks of trees, the easy-to-use Accelagro rings offer several advantages. They help retain soil heat and moisture to increase plant growth, they funnel moisture to the plant roots, they eliminate weeds to ease lawn or garden maintenance and help keep insects away from the stalks or trunks and roots.

Because the rings are made from long lasting plastic, they can be re-used for years with new plantings. Also, their availability in two sizes permits their use with both small or medium size plantings. The smaller unit that measures 12-inches in diameter and has a 3-inch diameter hole. A larger ring has a 24-inch diameter and a 6-inch hole.

The rings are packaged 50 per box of assorted colors of brown, green and black to harmonize with various lawn decoration plans.

Additional information about Accelagro rings is available from BQP Industries, 4747 Ironton Street, Denver, Colorado, 80239.

The oldest letter is "o," unchanged in shape since its adoption in the Phoenician alphabet about 1300 B.C.

Duchess chosen

LANSDALE - Montgomery Countians have an International Dutchess living in their midst, and probably, most of them don't know it. Betty Jean Rothenberger is the Dutchess referred to, and she is the top reigning royalty of the International Flying Farmers association.

Chosen before an audience of 1500 people in Saskatoon, Saskatchuan, Canada, recently, Betty Jean was picked from among state candidates. Each chapter, or state, in the organization has a queen who serves as hostess at social functions, writes correspondence, plans women's activities, and encourages other women to participate in the Landit program. A landit is a supervised solo and is a prepartory measure in case of emergencies.

Betty Jean Rothenberger

With the help of their children Betty Jean and her husband Maynard raise corn, alfalfa, and operate both a dairy and retail store on their Merrymead Farm near Lansdale. Their 150 registered Holstein cows provide the milk which the Rothenbergers market.

Betty Jean's activities, now that she is the International Dutchess, will remain similar to her responsibilities as queen, except they will be on a larger scale.
